PRESS RELEASE:

The following statement was prepared by Chief Albert J. Lutuli, President-General of the African National Congress ( banned in South Africa ), and is being issued on his instructions.

*****

The sentences of life imprisonment that have been pronounced on NELSON MANDELA, WALTER SISULU, DENNIS GOLDBERG, GOVAN MBEKI, AHMED MOHAMED KATHRADA, RAYMOND MHLABA, ELIAS MOTSOALEDI and ANDREW MLANGENI in the Rivonia Trial in Pretoria are a sentence of death on peace in South Africa.

Over the long years these leaders advocated a policy of racial co-operation, of goodwill, and of peaceful struggle that made the South African liberation movement one of the most ethical and responsible of our times. In the face of the most bitter racial persecution, they resolutely set themselves against racialism. In the face of continued provocation, they consistently chose the path of reason.

The African National Congress, with allied organisations, sought every possible means of redress for intolerable conditions, and held constantly to a policy of using militant, non-violent means of struggle. Their common aim was to create a South Africa in which all South Africans would live and work together as fellow-citizens, enjoying equal rights without discrimination on grounds of race, colour or creed.

To this end, they used every accepted method: propaganda, public meetings and rallies, petitions, stay-at-home strikes, appeals, boycotts. So carefully did they educate the people that in the four-year-long Treason Trial, one police witness after another voluntarily testified to this emphasis on non-violent methods of struggle in all aspects of their activities.

But finally all avenues...../2

But finally all avenues of resistance were closed. The African National Congress and other organisations were made illegal; their leaders jailed, exiled or forced underground. The Government sharpened its oppression of the people of South Africa, using its all-White parliament as the vehicle for making repression legal, and utilising every weapon of this highly industrialised and modern state to enforce that "legality". The stage was reached where a white spokesman for the disenfranchised Africans was regarded by the Government as a traitor. In addition, sporadic acts of uncontrolled violence were increasing throughout the country. At first in one place then in another, there were spontaneous eruptions against intolerable conditions; many of these acts increasingly assumed a racial character.

The African National Congress never abandoned its method of a militant, non-violent struggle, and of creating in the process a spirit of militancy in the people. However, in the face of uncompromising White refusal to abandon a policy which denies the African and other oppressed South Africans their rightful heritage - freedom - no one can blame brave and just men for seeking justice by the use of violent methods; nor could they be blamed if they tried to create an organised force in order ultimately to establish peace and racial harmony.

For this, they are sentenced to be shut away for long years in the brutal and degrading prisons of South Africa. With them will be interned this country's hopes for racial co-operation. They will leave a vacuum in leadership that may only be filled by bitter hate and racial strife.

They represent the highest in morality and ethics in the South African political struggle; this morality and ethics has been sentenced to an imprisonment it may never survive. Their policies are in accordance with the deepest international principles of brotherhood and humanity; without their leadership, brotherhood and humanity may be blasted out of existence in South Africa for long decades to come. They believe profoundly in justice and reason; when they are locked away, justice and reason will have departed from the South African scene.

This is an appeal to save these men, not merely as individuals, but for what they stand for. In the name of justice, of hope, of truth and of peace, I appeal to South Africa's strongest allies, Britain and America. In the name of what we have come to believe Britain and America stand for, I appeal to these two powerful countries to take decisive action for full-scale sanctions that would precipitate the end of the hateful system of apartheid.

I appeal to all governments throughout the world, to people everywhere, to organisations and institutions in every land and at every level, to act now to impose such sanctions on South Africa as will bring about the vital and necessary change, and avert what can become the greatest African tragedy of our times.
