The future of South Africa lies in a non-racial democracy.
But a non-racial democracy does not happen instantaneously
- it is a result of the people of a nation building their own future. As parents, we need to select schools that will train our children in non-racial principles. Staff and students in SAAIS schools strive to make those principles work at school so that students will later be able to apply them in society.
All SAAIS schools are non-racial, and few receive any government support. This means that they have to charge fees, and parents will be requested to assist in paying for their children's education. At the same time, bursaries are available to those in need.
Students in SAAIS schools learn to settle differences . through negotiation, to organise activities with consultation, to study for liberation and to serve the communities from which they come in the struggle for equality of opportunity in a non-racial democracy.
We urge parents, students and donors who desire to contribute to the development of southern Africa, to choose SAAIS schools and to participate in the development of quality education for the region.
