Mr. J. Saloojee,
African National Congress
Representative in Canada.

Dear Brother Saloojee:

As a member of the UAW I receive SOLIDARITY magazine
(Canadian edition) through the mail.

The April 1980 issue carried an item on page 11 (English section) under the heading "Workworld" entitled "UAW Buys Bricks for South African School".

There are a number of discrepancies in the article, not least of which is having you escaping from a prison for white (!) political offenders.

Also, the article does not explain the letters ACT. Is this a misprint of ANC or are two organizations involved?

The subheading could have been a bit more descriptive as well, e.g. "South African Refugee School", perhaps.

May I suggest you contact the editor for a correction.

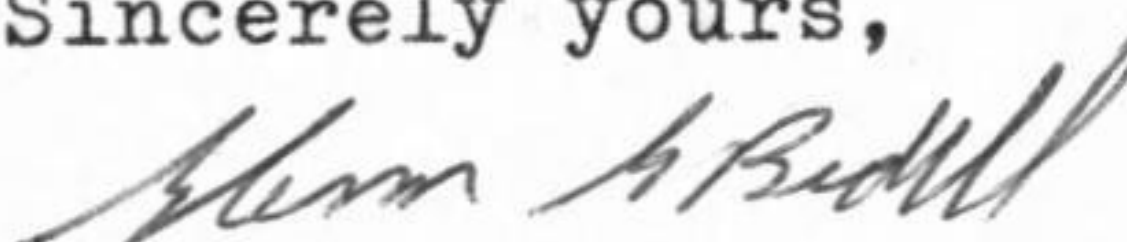

Our Local Union (Local 1967 UAW) passed a resolution in support of the "James Mange" campaign and will be sending $50 (fifty dollars) to the Committee.

I had hoped to have an article in our Local Union paper on the subject as I am on the editorial board, but the brother who promised to write it (a West Indian) was unable to do so because of family problems.

I have invited him and some other friends to come to Ottawa with us on May 31, so we may have a few cars full. In any case I am working towards this goal.

With best brotherly and comradely regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

Glenn G. Bedell.

P.S. The French section of SOLIDARITY does not appear to carry the "Buy a Brick" article at all. - GB
