The Chancellor

is an office that goes back to Antiquity: the original cancellarius regulated access to the Roman Tribune. In medieval times, the office became associated with the heads of the writing departments of the early kings. Because so few people were literate, a chancellor was automatically learned. This explains why the heads and spokesmen of the early universities were also accorded the title. More recently, the office has become largely symbolic. The executive head of a university is its vice-chancellor.

Justice Pius Langa is the sixth Chancellor of the University of Natal. His predecessors were: The Honourable D G Shepstone (1949-1966), Dr G G Campbell (1967-1973), Dr B A Armitage (1973-1983), the Honourable R N Leon QC (1983-1992), and Archbishop D E Hurley (1993-1998).

The Mace

The Chancellor's Mace, generally referred to as the Mace, is used on ceremonial occasions presided over by the chancellor and is regarded as the Chancellor's staff of office. It symbolises the University's protection of its Chancellor.

The use of the mace as a symbol of authority has a long history. The head of a copper mace, which apparently dates back to the 12th Century before Christ, has been excavated at Beyce Sultan in Asia. In the early centuries, churchmen who went to war often carried a mace in preference to a sword. One side of the mace-head was beautifully decorated with the owner's emblem and on the other side was a large knob which served as a weapon, and was always round so that the church law never to shed blood was always carefully observed! In the early centuries the mace was a symbol of the king's authority. During the power struggle between the king and the Commons in the 13th Century, the king gave the speaker the mace as a symbol of his indemnity against arrest.

The Mace was designed by Mr G H Atkins, senior lecturer in sculpture in the University's Department of Fine Arts, was made in England and was first used at the 1970 graduation ceremonies.

The Armorial Bearings

(See front cover)

The armorial bearings of the University of Natal were awarded by the College of Arms in London.

The two black wildebeest come from the arms of the Province of Natal. They are shown in full course to symbolise movement and progress. The two open books represent the universal heritage of knowledge and the two centres of the University, Durban and Pietermaritzburg. The five pointed star refers to the naming of Natal by Portuguese navigators when they landed for the first time at Durban on Christmas Day in 1497. Stella Aurorae, star of the dawn, symbolises the role of the University in bringing to light new knowledge and spreading the enlightening influence of education.

Academic Dress

The wearing of gowns by judges, ministers, teachers and scholars is an ancient and impressive custom. When the graduating students at universities receive their diplomas or degrees, they, too, (and perhaps, for some, only this once in their lives), wear the caps and gowns of this long tradition. By wearing the ancient regalia, they hold hands with students past and students present.

In modern times the standard cap and gown are almost universally worn. Of all the components of the costume, the hood conveys the greatest amount of information: it makes clear the level of the degree, the faculty in which it was given, and the institution which awarded it.

Convocation

After being capped by the Chancellor, each graduate moves across the stage and hands to the President of Convocation (or representative) a hood incorporating colours that indicate the degree being awarded and the Faculty in which it is being awarded. The President places the hood upon the graduate's shoulders, and, at the end of the ceremony, after the Chancellor's procession has left the stage, leads a procession of the new graduates out of the hall, row by row, to symbolise their acceptance into, and future membership of, the Convocation of the University of Natal, the statutory body through which graduates have the opportunity to play a continuing part in the affairs of the University.

CONFERMENT OF THE DEGREE OF
DOCTOR OF ARCHITECTURE
HONORIS CAUSA UPON

RONALD LEWCOCK

Professor Ronald Lewcock has made a significant contribution to architecture, architectural education and the history of architecture in South Africa and internationally.

He was born and raised in Brisbane, Australia and came to South Africa as an immigrant with his family in 1948. He entered the School of Architecture at the University of Cape Town and obtained the Bachelor of Architecture degree in 1951. The following year he joined the fledgling Department - a legacy that has lasted until today. Through their teaching they inspired a whole generation of architects, many of whom were to become national figures in their own right.

Ron Lewcock was one of the first academics to undertake rigorous research into historic South African architecture, including that of indigenous cultures. His PhD dissertation, which he presented at the University of Cape Town, was published as Early Nineteenth Century Architecture in South Africa and became a definitive work that is now an item of Africana. While practising as an architect, he was jointly responsible for the wing of Muckleneuk that now houses the Killie Campbell Collections.

He left South Africa in 1970 to become Whitehead Research Fellow at Clare College, Cambridge, where he pursued further study of colonial architectures. Since then he has had a varied and distinguished academic career, teaching at a number of well-known Schools of Architecture in the United Kingdom, Europe, the United States and Australia. Among his noteworthy positions has been that of Aga Khan Professor in the Department of Architecture at MIT, a post he held from 1984 - 1991. He is currently director of the PhD Program at the College of Architecture, Georgia Tech, in Atlanta.

He is a world authority on Colonial and Islamic Architecture and has been extensively involved in restoration and conservation work, primarily in Africa and the Middle East. He has co-ordinated various UNESCO initiatives to conserve historic city centres and buildings in Egypt, the Yemen, South Arabia and Uzbekistan. He has written, edited and contributed to eight major studies of the traditional architectures of these and other regions, including Traditional Architecture in Kuwait and the Northern Gulf and Architecture of the Islamic World. He has also done research and published in the area of architectural science, especially in climatic control in tropical and subtropical countries and, in acoustics, the acoustics of music and acoustical designing in architecture.

A Brief History of the University of Natal

In 1910, partly on the initiative of the Natal Colonial Government, the Natal University College (NUC) opened its doors in a corrugated iron annexe behind Maritzburg College. Eight professors taught 57 students Classics; English and Philosophy; Law; Modern Languages; Botany and Geology; Chemistry and Physics; Mathematics and Zoology. In 1912 the Old Main Building in Scottsville opened.

In 1922 the NUC extended its activities to Durban with university level courses in commerce and engineering taught at the Technical College. In 1932 Howard College was opened on the Durban Berea, firmly establishing the dual-based character of the University.

As a result of the initiatives of the Fabian Socialist, Dr Mabel Palmer, 19 "Non-European" students were enrolled at NUC in Durban in 1936. This grew to nearly 900 by 1960, thus firmly establishing the principle that the NUC would serve the needs of the whole community. However, like the Medical School, founded in 1951 for African, Indian and "Coloured" students, classes still reflected the segregated nature of the surrounding society. The National Party's Extension of University Act of 1959 limited new enrolments, other than those at Medical School, to "Whites" and brought a temporary halt to the University's aim of serving the educational needs of the whole community. It also severely restricted the autonomy achieved when the NUC became the University of Natal in 1949. Only when racial restrictions were partially lifted in 1983 could the University resume its task of serving the whole community. Since then it has welcomed increasing numbers of Black students, who now make up the majority of the student body.

In 1952, Dr E G Malherbe, who had steered the NUC towards being a fully independent university in 1949, moved the administrative function from Pietermaritzburg to Durban. In 1973, in response to mounting travelling costs, the two centres were academically separated. Each centre came to have parallel faculties of Law, Humanities, Commerce, Science and Social Science. The teaching of Architecture, Engineering, Medicine and Music was, however, limited to Durban, and Agriculture, Theology and Fine Art to Pietermaritzburg. With the process of restructuring recently completed, there has been a merging of some faculties across campuses. The present faculties are: Community and Development Disciplines (Dbn), Engineering (Dbn) and (Pmb), Human Sciences (Dbn) and (Pmb), Law (Dbn and Pmb), Management Studies (Dbn), Science and Agriculture (Pmb) Science (Dbn) and Medicine (Dbn).

The University of Natal has had some outstanding persons as vice-chancellors and principals. The first principal, John Bews, was a world-renowned botanist and E G Malherbe was known throughout the world as an outstanding educationalist. In 1993, the University of Natal was the first university in South Africa to appoint a woman, Brenda Gourley, as its principal. The largely ceremonial chancellors too, have been distinguished, not least the present incumbent, Justice Pius Langa and the recently retired Archbishop Denis Hurley. Students include people as diverse as Alan Paton, Steve Biko and Alec Erwin. Honorary Graduates include Nelson Mandela, Roy Campbell and Abdullah Ebrahim.

As the University stands on the brink of the new millennium, it is better placed than ever to achieve the goals of its Mission Statement: "to serve all sections of its community through excellence in scholarship, teaching, learning, research and development." It has moved vigorously to achieve the goals of its Strategic Initiatives, is one of the top universities in South Africa and has formal ties with some 260 of the world's leading universities.

Let us live and strive for freedom
In South Africa our land.

Gaudeamus Igitur

Gaudeamus igitur, juvenes dum sumus;
Gaudeamus igitur, juvenes dum sumus;
Post jucundam juventutem,

post molestam senectutem,
Nos habebit humus, nos habebit humus.

Ubi sunt qui ante nos in mundo fuere?
Ubi sunt qui ante nos in mundo fuere?
Vadite ad superos, transite ad inferos,
Ubi jam fuere, ubi jam fuere.

Vita nostra brevis est, brevi finietur;
Vita nostra brevis est, brevi finietur;
Venit mors velociter, rapit nos atrociter,
Nemini parcetur, nemini parcetur.
