Introduction

The United Nations Unit on Apartheid was established in 1966 and began its publications programme in 1967 with the special studies series (ST/PSCA/SER.A/...). Its major series, Notes and Documents, was inaugurated in December 1968. In 1970, seven special articles were published. The Unit on Apartheid was succeeded by the Centre against Apartheid in 1976. The Centre has continued the Notes and Documents series which now comprises the regular series and special issues. Conference and seminar publications and other special studies have been published as special issues. Printed publications have been issued since 1978. In the same year, the special studies series (ST/PSCA/SER.A/...) was discontinued.

The 575 publications issued from 1967 to 1982 are listed and then indexed by subject, personal author and organization. The subject index uses standard terms relevant to the study of South Africa. No attempt has been made to link these terms to any other indexing system. To facilitate use, "see" and "see also" references have been used where appropriate. The subdivision "Opposition to apartheid" has been used with countries, groups of countries and in a few other cases to distinguish this topic from broader relationships to South Africa. Organizations have been indexed here if they can be construed to be the subjects of the publications.

The personal author index lists authors of entire issues and parts of issues. In most cases, speeches and short articles found within the publications are also indexed.

The organization index lists groups found in all contexts: as subjects, authors and personal author affiliations. Cross-references are given from acronyms to the full names of the organizations.
