SOUTH AFRICA'S DESCENT INTO COMMUNISM AND THE NEW WORLD ORDER: REVOLUTION, BETRAYAL, SURRENDER (AND HOPE)

"Where there is no vision, the people perish." Prov. 29:18

[ED. NOTE: This writer just completed his thirty-fourth trip to the Republic of South Africa, after an absence of just over three years. This trip to the RSA included public lectures in Johannesburg, Cape Town, Durban, Ulundi (the capitol of KwaZulu) and at the Kwasibabantu Mission Station in rural Natal Province near KwaZulu. However, the primary purpose for this trip was to make an on-the-scene assessment of the revolutionary situation in South Africa and that country's transition to Black majority rule in what is now called the New South Africa.

To that end, this writer met with and interviewed officials in the ruling National Party; Dr. Andries Treurnicht (head of the opposition Conservative Party); Chief Minister Mangosuthu Buthelezi (the political leader of the Inkatha Freedom Party and of 7 million Zulus), and the Central Committee of his IFP; officials in the South African Police; military leaders (active and retired) from the South African Defense Force; a retired cabinet minister from the ruling National Party; banking, business, and medical leaders (including AIDS researchers); several ex-African National Congress officials who had been trained in the "old Soviet Union"; several each academics, farmers, journalists, and evangelical Christian leaders; and a number of old friends.

The conclusion this writer has come to (and the subject of this newsletter) is that South Africa is not only in the late stages of the first phase of a classic Marxist-Leninist revolution, but that the ruling National Party, under pressure from the Bush Administration, its State Department, and the so-called International Community, is in the process of handing political power over to the African National Congress and the organization which controls it, the South African Communist Party. (Everything about South Africa today has the "feel" of betrayal, surrender and handover of power that this writer sensed when he was in Zimbabwe and Namibia shortly before the Marxists were brought to power in those two formerly free countries.) If this handover of power to the ANC/SACP revolutionary alliance becomes a fait accompli (which at this writing appears likely) one of the bloodiest civil wars in all of history between the ANC, SACP, Pan African Congress, Xhosa (tribe) cadres, and leftist Whites on one side, and anti-communist Zulus, Tswanas, Afrikaansers and Black, White, Colored, and Indian moderates on the other is likely to eventuate.

Why is this writer so concerned about developments in far away, remote South Africa? Not just because the RSA is the last Christian, anti-communist, free market, pro-Western country in Africa; not just because South Africa has some of the greatest people in the world; but because South Africa is incredibly strategically important to America (and the non-communist West) as a result of its vast mineral resources - without which we could not survive as an industrial/military power in some future time of global military conflict - such as World War II.

INTRODUCTION

South Africa has had a classic Marxist-Leninist revolution directed at it for over 15 years which has moved into high gear over the past eight years and especially since 1989. This revolution to overthrow the pro-Western White-led South African government has been orchestrated for years from Moscow (capital of the "Old Soviet Union"), from London, and from Washington/New York (the home of the "New World Order"). Even though white domination, racism, and apartheid are cited as the reason for the global onslaught against the RSA, the true reason is the domination and exploitation of South Africa's vast mineral wealth including her gargantuan gold fields.

The present upheaval in South Africa is not racial - it is ideological (and spiritual); communist vs. non-communist; socialism vs. free enterprise; anti-Christ vs. Christian heritage and culture; international domination of South Africa vs. the RSA maintaining its own national sovereignty; the forces of darkness, evil, terror and violence vs. the forces of light, peace, and true Biblical love, unity, and cooperation. In the present South African upheaval you will find Whites, Blacks, Coloreds, and Indians on both sides of an epic struggle which is truly a battle between good and evil which will shortly be manifest all over the world.

The Marxist-Leninist ANC, and its mother organization (the South African Communist party) in their efforts to take over South Africa, have for years followed a broad general strategy which includes: 1) External Encirclement - with hostile Marxist Frontline States to the north and west, aimed by the "Old Soviet Union"; 2) Economic Warfare - to weaken and destabilize the RSA via US and Soviet-induced sanctions designed to put millions of South African Blacks out of work and so impoverish them that they could be drawn into the revolution as cannon-fodder, and designed to intimidate RSA leaders into surrender; 3) Psychological Warfare - designed to break down the will of the South African people (especially the once proud Afrikaaner) to resist the revolution and their will to resist the Marxist-induced international pressure to capitulate; 4) Internal Revolution - to so destabilize the RSA and make it ungovernable, that its leaders would 5) Negotiate Surrender - to turn over their power to the US/Soviet backed ANC/SACP alliance.

When this writer was last in South Africa (late '88) the Internal Revolution (Step 4) was in high gear. In August of 1989, State President P.W. Botha was overthrown in a bloodless coup orchestrated by several of his own powerful cabinet ministers and directed from behind the scenes by the US State Department (which has owned one of those cabinet ministers for years). Botha, like his counterpart in England, Margaret Thatcher, was dumped by his own party because he could not be counted on to complete Step 5, the final betrayal and surrender of South African sovereignty to the New World Order and the handover of power to the ANC/SACP alliance.

Since that coup, Nelson Mandela has been released; the South African Communist Party and the ANC have been unbanned; massive numbers of Soviet arms have entered the RSA via over 80,000 returning ANC cadres and their military wing, Umkhonto we Sizwe (MK); tens of thousands of moderate Blacks (especially Zulus) have been brutally butchered by the communists; the momentum of the revolution has dramatically accelerated; and the De Klerk government has entered negotiations to form an interim (coalition) government with the ANC/SACP alliance and to ultimately turn over power to same.

Behind the scenes, the US State Department (which, it should be recalled, helped to overthrow Chiang Kai Shek in favor of Mao Tse Tung in China in 1949; Batista in favor of Castro in Cuba in 1958; Somoza in favor of the Sandanistas in Nicaragua in 1979; the Shah of Iran in favor of Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran in 1979; Ferdinand Marcos in favor of Corazon Aquino in the Philippines in 1986, etc.) and is writing the script for the ANC/SACP revolutionaries on almost a day-to-day basis and dictating the terms of surrender to the weak, appeasement-oriented De Klerk government as well.

In the October '87 issue of MIA and in numerous speeches in South Africa and meetings with RSA cabinet ministers, this writer warned that if or when the communist revolutionary and terrorist Nelson Mandela was released from prison:

1) The ANC/SACP alliance would see it as a sign that the government was capitulating, that the communist hammer and sickle flags (SACP and Soviet) would be unfurled all across the RSA, and mass demonstrations would explode on the scene all over the country;

2) Mandela would begin a triumphant tour around South Africa (like Khomeini when he returned to Iran and Mugabe and Nkomo when they returned to Zimbabwe);

3) Mandela would then be brought by the political left and the State Department to America for a bash South Africa tour which would include being wined and dined in the White House, a speech before a joint session of the US Congress, and appearances on ABC Nightline, 60 Minutes, Meet the Press and a host of other national US television shows. This writer did not foresee the ticker tape parade in New York, but did warn that: "the global anti-South Africa juggernaut would be given a giant shot in the arm, and the global onslaught and momentum against South Africa would grow dramatically."

4) Mass demonstrations and huge crowds addressed by the communist revolutionary hero would precipitate violent clashes with the police, bloodshed, and deaths. These, in turn, would generate tremendous foreign pressure against the "apartheid regime."

5) Moderate Blacks would become demoralized, would begin to realize that they were on the losing side, and either vanish from sight, or join the "apparent winners." Their alternative would be the dreaded "necklace treatment," fire bombings of their houses, violent murder of themselves or their families, etc.

6) Just as the triumphant reentry of Khomeini signaled to the Iranian masses the victory of the revolution, so Mandela's triumphant reentry from prison and onto the South African scene would signal to South Africa's Black masses and to the world that the revolution had finally won.

7) Finally, under inordinate pressure (external and internal), MIA wrote that the "RSA government was likely to collapse and to be replaced by a coalition government, thus marking the success of Phase 1 of the Two Phase Revolution."

Virtually all of those predictions have now taken place and the coalition government (the interim government now on the National Party/ANC/SACP drawing boards) could become a fait accompli within a very few months. All coalition governments between communists and non-communists since 1917 have ultimately been taken over by the communists (or Marxist-Leninists).

South Africa is in the latter stages of Phase 1 of the Two Phase Revolution, the National Liberation revolution to establish a National Democratic Government (i.e., the coalition between the communists and non-communists). That is scheduled by the ANC/SACP alliance, by the US State Department, and by the De Klerk National Party government to happen in 1992. Phase 2 of the revolution, the "People's Democracy", (or Communist State) is scheduled to be established by '93 to '95, with the liberal elements (i.e., National Party and Democratic Party officials) to be purged out of the government in Phase 2.

This Two Phase Revolution follows the Marxist-Leninist pattern of two step revolutions in Russia, Red China, Cuba, Nicaragua, Rhodesia, and follows almost precisely the pattern for a Marxist-Leninist revolution laid out by the Shah of Iran in his 1980 book, The Shah's Story: FIRST, the mass media is used to soften up world opinion and governments as to how "evil and repressive" the target regime is. SECOND, leftist religious leaders, because of their credibility, following, and general naivete, are drawn into the revolution to help lead the masses against the government. THIRD, the more the target government liberalizes conditions in the country, the more the revolutionaries use those changes as a "sign of weakness" and escalate their demands.

FOURTH, the revolutionaries use bereavement tactics to create new mass demonstrations and violence at funerals each time a revolutionary or innocent victim is killed. FIFTH, the gullible youth are drawn in, emotionally incited to violence, imbued with a feeling of power, and sent out in violent gangs to attack moderate, anti-revolutionary targets. SIXTH, the trained revolutionaries begin to pull out pre-positioned arms and explosives and attack police stations, government installations, power stations, murder moderate leaders, and move the country to the brink of chaos.

SEVENTH, the revolutionaries incite school boycotts, strikes, and strike violence, escalating these to a general strike to paralyze the country. EIGHTH, the US government appears on the scene (via the State Department) to withdraw all support from the beleaguered ally, to force out the faltering regime (i.e., to intimidate it into capitulation), to usher in the revolutionary government and put the "best face" possible on it (usually calling it a "National Democratic Government").

All eight steps of this revolutionary pattern are now far advanced, with South Africa presently in the latter stages of step #8.

[ED. NOTE: One of the most persuasive arguments which the US State Department, liberal South African government leaders, and the liberal South African media have used to argue for the handover of power to the ANC/SACP alliance is that: "Communism is dead, the cold war is over; the Soviet Union, its Communist Party, and KGB are history; and so, South Africans have nothing to fear from communism. The ANC/SACP alliance will quickly forget their Marxist rhetoric, their threats of confiscation of private property, their clenched fist salutes, their communist flags, and their violence when they come to power, and will become responsible Black nationalists whom the West can deal with."

This argument is a lie from the pit of hell (or more specifically from the disinformation departments of the US State Department, the KGB and the present South African government) to neutralize the threat perception in the minds of South Africans, and cause them to accept the ANC/SACP alliance as their new government. For more information on what is really happening in the communist world, write for a copy of MIA's September/October '91 issue: "The Rebirth of the Empire: What is Really Happening in the Soviet Union." (In South Africa, write to P.O. Box 26148, 0007 Arcadia, South Africa - Cost: 10 rand.)]

Today South Africa finds itself (in spite of the partial lifting of sanctions) with: 1) an economic depression; 2) the biggest explosion of crime and political violence in its history; 3) a confused, frightened, despondent and demoralized population (including many Whites, Colored, Blacks and Indians) who are mesmerized by their State-run television (which is saturated with surrender propaganda and brainwashing) and their leftist (pro-ANC/SACP) press; 4) a liberal, confused array of Christian churches and leaders which have fallen away from their Biblical foundations and accepted many of the arguments of the Liberation Theologians and the surrender/peace-at-any-price/New World Order crowd; and 5) a government in the process of surrendering political power (under pressure from the US State Department, the so-called International Community and Bush and Gorbachev's New World Order) to the ANC/SACP communist alliance.

This issue of MIA will analyze the role of the New World Order in the present South African revolution and betrayal; the ANC/SACP alliance and its current strategy and tactics in the present stage of the South African revolution; the appeasement, betrayal and surrender being perpetrated on the South African people by their own government; the Zulu factor in the present upheaval; how the US State Department (and the foreign ministries of Great Britain, France and Germany) are orchestrating the destruction of South Africa; the potential for civil war and Lebanization in the RSA; and some possible positive solutions for South Africa even at the present late stage of its revolution.

I. HOW THE SOUTH AFRICAN REVOLUTION AND BETRAYAL FITS INTO THE NEW WORLD ORDER

Knowledgeable observers of the South African revolution have long been perplexed as to why the powers that be in America, England, Germany and Western Europe would intentionally back the ANC/SACP revolutionary forces in their bid to come to power in the RSA. Why would allegedly pro-Western, non-communist political and religious leaders, and finance capitalists back a Marxist-Leninist revolution in South Africa? Why would powerful South African politicians and finance capitalists betray their own country to the communist ANC/SACP alliance? It is not because they do not understand the real issues and players in South Africa, because they do!

To understand the present betrayal of South Africa to an evil, Marxist-Leninist revolution, it is necessary to understand present South African developments within the larger context of the world's present plunge toward a global government - called by the liberal establishment in America, in Europe, in Japan, in Australia and in South Africa the New World Order.

Since mid-1990, US President George Bush has publicly referred over 150 times to the New World Order; Mikhail Gorbachev referred to the New World Order hundreds of times in speeches from 1988 forward; Fidel Castro first referred to the New World Order in 1979; one world internationalist H.G. Wells wrote about the New World Order as early as the mid-'30s, calling it "a planned World State" and saying: "the New Plan in America and the New Plan in Russia are both related to the ultimate World-State."

What is the New World Order? It is a world or global government under the United Nations which international elitists in the financial and power corridors of America, Europe, Japan, South Africa, etc. believe they can install by the mid-to-late 1990s. The New World Order is being pushed by the world's most powerful socialists, communists, internationalists, occultists, and New Agers. Willie Brandt, former Chancellor of West Germany, Chairman of the Fifth Socialist International, and a long time Soviet collaborator, recently chaired the Brandt Commission which gave the following definition of the New World Order: "A world that has a supernational authority to regulate world commerce and industry; an international organization that would control the production and consumption of oil, and international currency that would replace the dollar; a World Development Fund that would make funds available to free and communist nations alike; and an international police force (i.e., the UN) to enforce the edicts of the New World Order."

Some of the elements of the New World Order would be: a global taxation system; a world court; a world army; a world central bank; a world welfare state; compulsory worldwide economic planning; abolition of private firearms; mandatory population and environmental control; centralized control of education; and a world police force - under the UN - with the US and Russian militaries as the core of this UN police force.

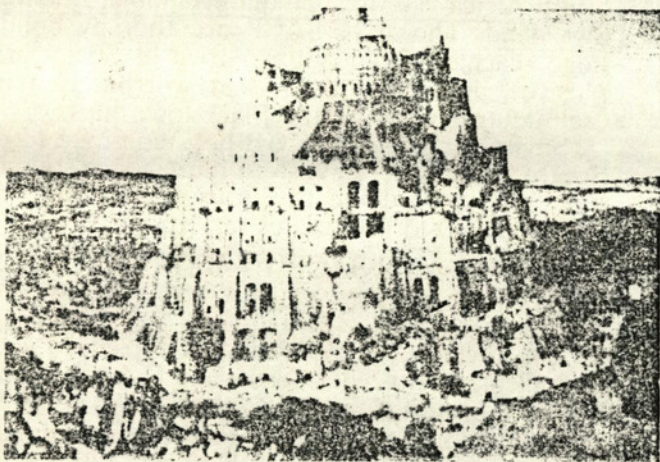

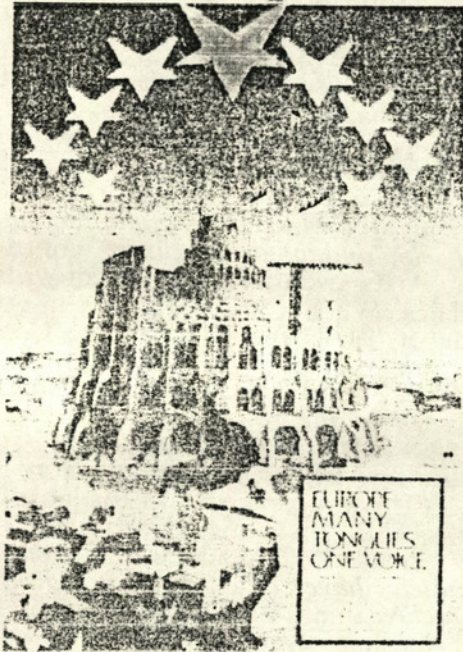

In late January of '92, the leaders of the top 20 Western nations met at the UN in New York and pledged that the UN would henceforth be used to police countries within their borders, to put down civil wars ("which would no longer be tolerated"), to keep internal as well as international peace. Under the New World Order, the plan is to move UN troops into any country in the world to keep the peace, put down insurrection, rebellion, or opposition to the New World Order. Operation Desert Storm was the first enforcement operation of the New World Order (unless the US overthrow of General Noriega in Panama is counted).

The New World Order is to consist of three major regional governments: 1) The United States of Western Europe - the 12-nation European superstate which becomes a political reality at the end of 1992; 2) NACOM - the North American Common Market, made up of the US, Canada, and Mexico; and 3) a Pacific Rim regional government headquartered in Japan or Singapore. The New World Order will also have four secondary regional governments: 1) A Latin American regional government probably incorporating Central America; 2) A Middle East regional government; 3) A South Pacific regional government anchored by Australia and New Zealand; and 4) an African regional government anchored by a Marxist-Leninist dominated ANC government in Pretoria. The cornerstone of the New World Order, as seen by its planners, is the merger or convergence of the common interests of America and Russia into a strong alliance.

Today, the New World Order is being pushed by powerful establishment elitist groups such as the Council on Foreign Relations, the Trilateral Commission, and Yale University's occultic Skull and Bones in America. [ED. NOTE: George Bush has belonged to all three]; the Club of Rome, the Bilderbergers, the Socialist International and Britain's Fabian Socialists in Europe; and powerful politicians and finance capitalists throughout the Western world - including South Africa.

There are powerful occultic links with many of the leaders of the New World Order - many of whom are also leading New Agers. The European Community poster seen all over Western Europe entitled: "Europe: Many Tongues, One Voice" has pictured on it the Tower of Babel. Note the painting beside the poster entitled "The Tower of Babel" by the 16th Century Flemish artist Pieter Bruegel. Also note that the stars representing the member states of the US of Western Europe are upside down, in the form of the pentagram, or more accurately the baphomet, a symbol representing the goat's head, used widely among Satan worshippers and witches. The European "superstate" is run by Europe's biggest socialists and occultists who, incidentally, were infiltrated by the KGB over 15 years ago.

[ED. NOTE: The last time the occult rose to power was in the 1930s under the Nazi Third Reich - which was based on the same Eastern occultic religion as the New Age Movement.]

The elites at the head of the New World Order prefer dealing with Marxist-Leninists (or at least socialist) governments in many (if not most instances) since they are deemed to be easier to manipulate, exploit and control. Independent, non-Marxist, anti-communist or maverick states such as Chile under Pinochet; Nicaragua under Somoza; Iran under the Shah; England under Margaret Thatcher; the Philippines under Marcos; South Africa before liberal New World Order surrogates took over the National Party; South Korea; Taiwan; or Israel under Shamir are all considered to be a hindrance to the New World Order. Hence, their leaders or their governments must be coopted or overthrown. Margaret Thatcher and P.W. Botha were both overthrown by bloodless coups from within their own parties led by cabinet members who had long since been coopted by the New World Order.

One powerful South African cabinet minister, R.F. (Pik) Botha, said recently on Cable News Network: "As soon as democracy is in place in South Africa, the New World Order will be ushered in." That same minister, in a personal letter by his private secretary to a friend of this writer, wrote: "The New World Order is the term used to describe the economic, political, social, and military alliances that states endorse (formally or informally)...countries that are not political or economic leaders in the world, such as South Africa, have to position themselves accordingly, within that World Order that will ultimately eventuate."

The leaders of the New World Order have apparently promised certain financial and political leaders in South Africa a prominent position in the African branch of the New World Order if they help deliver South Africa to an "internationally acceptable" ANC government. The US State Department, one of the New World Order's primary implementation arms worldwide, is dictating the strategy of surrender to South Africa's present financial and political leaders, who are being told that they will still retain positions of power in the new regime or will be able to manipulate events from behind the scenes, both in an ANC-dominated South Africa and throughout the continent.

[ED. NOTE: It should be noted that powerful globalist finance capitalists actually prefer a Marxist government in power as a means of milking more profits out of a country or region. They believe an inefficient, incompetent Marxist regime is far easier to control and manipulate than a free government or its people. As the managing director of one large South African multinational corporation once told this writer regarding doing business in a Marxist-dominated country: "The raw materials are still there, the world markets are still there, but the labor is so much cheaper (i.e., slave labor always is) - and the profits are greater than ever."

And that is why George Bush and his establishment associates were right back in Red China just 30 days after the Chinese government slaughtered 10,000 students at Tiananmen Square - "slave labor is cheaper and the profits (in the billions of dollars) are greater than ever." And that is why David Rockefeller, who was recently in South Africa, said a few years ago that he "preferred to do business with a Marxist country because of its greater stability and predictability." Rockefeller just pledged $5 billion from family trust funds to the ANC over five years via the new South Africa Trust for Equity and Development - it's called "investing in a stable and profitable future."

CONCLUSION

The sellout and betrayal of South Africa to a Marxist-Leninist ANC/SACP alliance by Western and South African leaders is easier to understand if seen within the context of their rapidly accelerating plans for a New World Order. An independent, anti-communist, maverick, Christian South Africa (which is certainly what South Africa was 5-10 years ago but is no more) simply does not fit into the model of a New World Order envisioned by the globalists. A Marxist-Leninist People's Republic of Azania, which they believe they can manipulate from behind the scenes via their power, wealth, financial aid, credits, weapons and the machinations of the US State Department and UN does fit into the model of a New World Order envisioned by the globalists. Unfortunately, freedom for the Black, White, Colored and Indian peoples of South Africa is not part of the equation.

[ED. NOTE: The New World Order crowd are certainly in bed with world communism (i.e., Russian, Chinese, Cuban, Nicaraguan, Indian, etc.) and while declaring communism dead, the cold war over and the Soviet Union non-existent, are pumping hundreds of billions into the "Old Soviet Union," Red China and other communist countries whom they arrogantly believe will be second class satraps in their New World Order, whom they can control with their financing, high tech aid, etc. This writer strongly believes, however, that the greatest surprise of the 1990s will be the "miraculous" resurrection of the communist powers, led by the Russian Bear, who will reemerge stronger than ever and who will ultimately double-cross their New World Order partners. In the meantime, the challenge for the free peoples of South Africa is to keep from being delivered into the New World Order trap by their leaders.]

II. THE ANC/SACP ALLIANCE

Since the US State Department, the United Nations, the International Community and the leadership of the RSA National Party are all pushing for a handover of power to the ANC, it is appropriate to ask the questions: who is the ANC today, who are their friends and allies, what do they stand for and what are they likely to do when they come to power? (The ANC today claims to have 600,000 members and the South African Communist Party claims to have 25,000, while the Inkatha Freedom Party, made up of 58% Zulus and headed by Chief Minister Buthelezi, has 2.2 million signed up members and FIDA, a Black moderate party, has 450,000 signed up members.)

A. ANC CONTROL BY THE SOUTH AFRICAN COMMUNIST PARTY

The ANC is truly just a front for the SACP, with 37 of 50 members recently elected to the National Executive Committee of the ANC (its ruling body) also members of the SACP. Chris Hani, the head of Umkhonto we Sizwe (also known as "the Spear of the Nation" or MK), the guerilla or military wing of the ANC, in December '91 became the General Secretary of the SACP, taking over from Joe Slovo, the long time leader of the SACP, a White Lithuanian communist and a colonel in the Soviet KGB, who is dying of bone cancer. (See picture of Slovo and Mandela under communist flag).

SACP members control the ANC's labor movement Cosatu; they control most key working groups negotiating for the handover of power by the South African government to the ANC; they control efforts by the ANC to establish "self defense units" (i.e., terrorist units and block committees as per the Cuban revolution) in the Black townships; they control the ANC's information (propaganda) department and virtually all other key leadership positions in the ANC. Most of these SACP cadres have been trained in Marxism/Leninism and revolutionary techniques in Russia, Cuba, or other communist countries.

The political agenda of the ANC is totally dictated by the SACP and its leaders, such as Hani and Slovo. The SACP, whose new constitution demands "an end to capitalistic exploitation and its replacement with undiluted socialism," controls all aspects of the ANC, even to the extent of writing Mandela's speeches. When Chris Hani was in America in the spring of '91 as the guest of the Communist Party USA and the leftist/globalist Carnegie Endowment for Peace, he told the audience that "far from being weakened by the collapse of communism in Eastern Europe [ED. NOTE: "apparent" collapse], his socialist convictions had become more imbedded than ever." (This probably speaks for most communists in the world, including Gorbachev, Yeltsin and Shevardnadze). Hani added that "South Africa would ultimately have a communist government." [ED. NOTE: As things now stand, that appears quite possible - perhaps even likely.]

B. THE SOVIET ARMS PIPELINE IS STILL OPERATING FOR THE ANC/SACP

Chris Hani acknowledged in mid-'91 that the Soviet Union was continuing to train ANC terrorists and pointed out that the ANC "retains a very close relationship with the Soviet Union." At this writing the "New Soviet Union" (or Commonwealth of Independent States), its reorganized KGB and its military continue to supply ANC terrorists in Zambia and Tanzania with military equipment and feed the arms pipeline into South Africa via Mozambique, Namibia, Botswana and Swaziland. The ANC/SACP are thereby building up huge caches within South Africa of Soviet arms, explosives, and ammunition that will be used in their "self defense units" in the Black townships.

Soviet (or Russian) KGB links continue to grow in South Africa, where Western intelligence sources have already identified the first four Russian diplomats to be accredited to Pretoria as top KGB officials.

C. THE ANC/SACP IN BED WITH CASTRO, QADAFI, AND ARAFAT

On December 8, 1991, the SACP pledged its support and allegiance to Fidel Castro and Cuba, it promised to mount a protest campaign "to expose the intrigues of US imperialism against Cuba," promised to raise funds for the Cuban people, and said that Cuba offers the closest model of what the SACP wants for a liberated South Africa. Chris Hani said: "The ANC does not hide its close ties with Cuba which has assisted the ANC and now need help itself...The ANC agrees with the SACP that CUBA is an important part of the struggle of mankind for freedom, national liberation and social justice. The ANC has got very strong links with Cuba."

The SACP pledged that it would forge "close fraternal links" with Marxist parties all over the world, and hailed the SACP as "the political vanguard of the working class, basing itself on the guiding principles of Marxism/Leninism." It pledged itself to follow the precepts of Lenin.

In July '91, Nelson and Winnie Mandela flew to Cuba to help Castro celebrate the communist revolution in Cuba. As Winnie hailed Cuba "as our second home," Nelson addressed the ceremony saying "Long live the Cuban Revolution. Long live comrade Fidel Castro...Cuban internationalists have done so much for African independence, freedom, and justice. We admire the sacrifices of the Cuban people in maintaining their independence and sovereignty in the face of a vicious imperialist campaign designed to destroy the advances of the Cuban revolution. We too want to control our destiny...There can be no surrender. It is a case of freedom or death. The Cuban Revolution has been a source of inspiration to all freedom-loving people."

In January, Mandela came out in defense of Colonel Muammar Qaddafi and pleaded with George Bush and the UN to let the Libyan dictator off of the hook for the 1988 bombing of the Pan Am airliner over Lockerbie, Scotland. Mandela has also been very vocal in his support of Saddam Hussein and Yasar Arafat. The fact is that Cuba, Qaddafi and the PLO have trained and armed ANC guerrillas for years. If, or when, the ANC/SACP come to power in South Africa, they are likely to quickly form an alliance with the radical Islamic-Arab imperialist movement spearheaded in North Africa by Qaddafi and which is spreading south of the Sahara. Because of the ANC's ties with the PLO and radical Islam, an ANC government in South Africa would not only be decidedly anti-Western but also anti-Israel.

D. ANC/SACP CONFISCATION OF PROPERTY

The ANC continues to reiterate the old Marxist/Leninist concept that when it comes to power it will take the wealth away from the Whites and redistribute it to the Blacks - especially the Black communists. The Marxist Sandanistas did this in Nicaragua and in a decade they reduced the most prosperous country in Central America to one of the most impoverished countries in the world (i.e., poorer than Haiti).

In recent months, ANC/SACP officials have shocked and frightened middle class White South Africans and businessmen by renewing their calls for nationalization of mines, key industries, and financial institutions and the demand for a wealth tax to be imposed on wealthy and not so wealthy South African Whites. On 9/27/91, ANC President Nelson Mandela, addressing a dinner of leading business executives, said that "mines and banks would be nationalized, and massive state intervention was likely, to correct the social and economic traumas of apartheid."

Mandela went on to say, "Japan, Germany and South Korea had all resorted to such a strong statist policy to cope with their economic crises in the post-World War II era, and South Africa would do likewise to correct the social injustices of apartheid." Mandela has periodically talked of nationalization or confiscation of White property since his release from prison in February, 1990.

Several months ago an ANC official said at a conference in Washington that "the ANC is considering a special apartheid reparations tax, targeting Whites to finance the huge cost of Black social and economic development." As explained in the Johannesburg Sunday Times, "Whites would be 'forced' to pay the state an extra, one-time tax amounting to the value of one-third of their personal assets."

On 1/1/91, ANC General Secretary Cyril Ramaphosa told a press conference: "The ANC would not be keen to honor international loans granted to past apartheid governments that enforced the policy of racial separation. Any future democratically-elected government had the right and moral duty to reevaluate any loans that the apartheid regime entered into and the conditions under which they have been obtained." On 1/22/92, after a five-year 880 million rand European loan to South Africa was announced, the ANC renewed its threat to renege on such international loans when it comes to power.

South African businessmen, bankers, and citizens would be naive to assume that the ANC/SACP alliance would do anything but confiscate private property and renege on existing loans if or when they come to power. That is standard Marxist-Leninist revolutionary modus operandi. Ask formerly wealthy or middle class Nicaraguans or Cubans! Meanwhile, in light of these continuing ANC threats, external financing and investment in South Africa is drying up at this writing. [ED. NOTE: If the ANC comes to power via an interim government in the months to come, foreign investors in South African mining shares and ESCOM bonds would be well-advised to sell immediately. Expropriation and/or civil war is likely to follow!]

III. ELEMENTS OF THE COMMUNIST REVOLUTION IN SOUTH AFRICA

"Well, we've won a hands down victory over the Boers. They all welcomed the Declaration of Intent, which is not much different from the manifesto with which Lenin won over the Russian people in 1917 - of course, in their blind ignorance, those Codesa enthusiasts would not have known about that. Pretty soon a lot of you Whites will be packing for Perth and Slovo and his boys will come into their own." Jay Coulson, Former Assistant Secretary of the British Communist Party (quoted in the Citizen, 12/31/91).

The general goals of the ANC/SACP Revolution are to: 1) Make South Africa ungovernable; 2) Establish an interim government which they will quickly dominate; 3) Convert Umkhonto we Sizwe (MK) into the South African Army; 4) Establish a Marxist-Leninist police state; 5) Confiscate private property and destroy all vestiges of South African culture and history - especially Christianity.

[ED. NOTE: True evangelical Christians of all races (not liberal Christians or followers of Liberation Theology) will come under extreme persecution under a Marxist-Leninist ANC/SACP government, with an underground church emerging similar to what has existed in Eastern Europe, Russia and China for decades.]

As Soviet Commissioner of Education Lunacharsky once said: "Even the best of them (Christians) must be considered our worst enemies. Christian love is an obstacle to the development of the revolution. Down with love of one's neighbor! What we want is hate... Only then can we conquer the universe."

A. FORTY-FOUR MARXIST-LENINIST TECHNIQUES TO PROMOTE A REVOLUTION

To understand what is really happening in South Africa today, it is very helpful to study the Russian, Cuban, and Nicaraguan revolutions and the Marxist-Leninist revolutionary strategy, tactics, deception, and machinations used to come to power. Fifty of those techniques adapted to the South African revolution (from the Aida Parker Newsletter, P.O. Box 91059, Auckland Park, 2006, South Africa), follow:

- Demand "negotiations" - then threaten to call off discussions at any time on any pretext.
- Threaten that "if demands are not met," a call will be put out to revert to "the armed struggle."
- Use intimidation, force, terror and fear on a wide scale.
- Refuse to participate or cooperate in local government. Kill and terrorize moderate Black councilors and their families.
- Provoke violent action to cause the authorities to act with determination to restore order; then accuse them of violence. Call for the removal of the police. When this is done, accuse the government of not maintaining order. Declare a "breakdown in law and order."
- Politicize all aspects of life in the name of the "class struggle." Use every possible sector to promote the revolutionary program.
- Pretend to promote "reconciliation" while simultaneously stimulating and provoking social unrest and mass demonstrations, all the time blaming others for sowing social strife.
- Foster a lenient and tolerant attitude towards such civil disorder and create hostility towards the police.
- Create a profound "guilt complex" in clerics, trendy politicians, academics and liberal leaders.
- Defame those who try to point out the dangers.
- Ridicule all loyal, patriotic citizens or organizations.
- Exploit to the utmost all situations of poverty, homelessness and destitution.
- Stimulate racial hatred, divisions, fear and prejudice between Whites and Blacks and between Blacks and other Blacks.
- Mobilize and manipulate South Africa's Black workers.
- Supercharge the climate by rubbing all sores of discontent.
- Speak in symbolic terms and always call for "freedom."

- Elevate minor issues to major conflict (example, the so-called Inkathagate scandal) while playing down or refusing to disclose your own affairs.
- Conquer the student mind. Use student riots to foment public protest.
- Infiltrate cadres and fellow travellers into the schools, universities and technical schools. Grab control of teacher's organizations, student newspapers and youth groups.
- Infiltrate and intimidate Big Business.
- Always delegitimize the government by terming it "the regime."
- Infiltrate your agents into the security network, police force and army.
- Discredit and attack the security forces on all occasions; while at the same time strengthening your own armed forces. (Note how Umkhonto we Sizwe cadres now returning to South Africa are being integrated into the Trunskai Army.)
- Demand that the police use "civilized" crowd control and not be issued with live ammunition.
- Demand independent commissions of inquiry to investigate each and every complaint against the police.
- Set up your own "self-defense units." Demand active participation by all the community's doctors, communications people, home-made weapons manufacturers and even small children.
- Demand that Inkatha be stripped of all "traditional weapons" such as spears and knobberies, while refusing to surrender your own caches of AK-47s, grenades and other hardware. Purpose: obviously to disarm Inkatha and enforce control of the townships. (Ever tried to protect yourself with a cow-hide shield against an AK-47?)
- Discredit or assassinate those who attempt to obstruct you. (Scarcely noticed is that some 168 Inkatha branch leaders have been systematically assassinated and thousands murdered and maimed in recent years.)
- Establish radical "alternative media" and infiltrate the conventional media, especially radio and TV.
- Milk allegations of government "hit squads" to the last drop. Ensure little attention is given to your own "hits."
- Identify civil servants, journalists, politicians who may be vulnerable to control through intimidation or blackmail.
- Discredit Western/Christian culture by degrading all forms of artistic expression: theater, art films, literature.
- Break down accepted norms of morality by promoting pornography, homosexuality and obscenity in books, the media, TV, cinema, radio, videos. [ED. NOTE: Penthouse Magazine is now advertised in airports all over South Africa on large 4 feet-high signs.]
- Eliminate all laws governing obscenity by shouting "censorship" or "violation of free speech" every time an attempt is made to curb pornography.

PHONE 087...

- Corrupt the young. Get them away from religion. Get them interested in sex, drugs, pornography.
- Get people's minds off the reality by focusing their attention on sports, TV, sexy books and plays and other trivialities.
- Discredit the family as an institution. Break down the parent/child relationships.
- Encourage promiscuity, deviate sex and divorce.
- Present homosexuality as "normal and socially acceptable." Note: The ANC has guaranteed its support of "Gay Rights."
- Wherever possible, implicate opponents in actual or rumored scandals, then publicly blackmail them.
- Use radical overseas groups to force Western governments to underwrite your Marxist ambitions.
- Never allow yourself to be pinned down when "the people" ask what future they could expect under your promised "People Government."
- "Always preach democracy, but seize power as fast and as ruthlessly as possible." (Lenin)
- Maintain the pressure on all sides till people are thoroughly weary and in despair and will surrender to any false promise, "anything for the sake of peace."

B. THE USE OF NEGOTIATIONS TO ACHIEVE POWER

"We must remember that virtually all revolutionary struggles in the post war period (Algeria, Vietnam, Angola, Mozambique, etc.) reached their final climax at the negotiating table. The question of negotiations usually arrives at a time of major revolutionary climax involving the transfer of power...The main thrust of our strategy remains a revolutionary seizure of power." May, 1986 SACP Document

The communists are masters at negotiating for what is yours, or for what they cannot win on a field of battle and when they enter into negotiating with Western liberals (who are naive as to their Machiavellian Marxist-Leninist techniques and machinations - as the present RSA government is) the communists always win. Remember, America won the Vietnam war on the battlefield and lost it at the negotiating table just as South Africa won the Angolan war on the battlefield and lost it at the negotiating table.

Some of the reasons that Western liberals such as the present RSA government always lose out to the communists at the negotiating table is that the former treat the latter as equals and as people who will keep their word once an agreement is reached, and the latter use the negotiations as a weapon of conquest and keep moving the goal post as each new agreement is made. The communists are always on the offensive in negotiations, while the liberals are always on the defensive (i.e., in retreat) - a sure way to lose in a football, soccer or basketball game, or in a revolution. For example, in the present Codesa negotiations, the South African government's goal is to share power with the ANC/SACP alliance (i.e., to give away half of the loaf and retain half of the loaf) while the SACP/ANC goal is to take the whole loaf. Before the process is over, the communists will probably end up with three-quarters of the loaf or more.

Sir Walter Thompson, an expert on revolutionary warfare, wrote in his book on revolutionary warfare, Peace Is Not At Hand, about the flawed negotiating techniques used when Western (including South African) liberals negotiate with Marxists. Some of these errors include:

1. The belief that any agreement, even a bad or unenforceable one, is better than no agreement at all, and a willingness to compromise and make concessions to solve a conflict and produce a settlement.

2. Tolerance of violence during the "peace process."

3. The willingness on the part of Western liberals to make concessions on behalf of themselves or their allies and to ignore subsequent breaches on the part of the Marxists, under the illusion that insistence on strict observance would be provocative and imperil the "peace process."

As the Citizen said (4/1/91): "The government knows that most of the violence in the townships can be blamed on the ANC. Yet for the sake of keeping the negotiations going, the government has not made any real fuss about what is going on." Everyone knew that the ANC/SACP alliance would violate the National Peace Accord which it signed 9/14/91 and that it would not be penalized for breaches, just as SWAPO was not penalized for its April 1, 1989 invasion of South West Africa. As a direct result of not being penalized, SWAPO won the election. The Marxist Patriotic Front did likewise in the Zimbabwe election in 1980, and won. In the same manner, the ANC/SACP will violate all the accords it signs, continue its killing and intimidation of Black moderates, and probably win a national referendum.

C. THE USE OF VIOLENCE TO ACHIEVE POWER

Political violence is an intrinsic and essential part of a Marxist-Leninist revolution - designed to liquidate key non- or anti-revolution leaders and to intimidate the masses into going along with the revolution. At the peak of the revolution, only the Marxists can promise peace and a cessation of violence to the exhausted war-weary public who are willing to accept Marxist rule in return for peace and cessation of violence and terror.

Today in South Africa, the ANC/SACP alliance is at the root of most of the political violence and much of the exploding crime wave in the RSA. The Pan African Congress, with a membership of 90,000, and a slogan of "One settler, one bullet," is also behind a growing amount of the violence in South Africa. It kills policemen openly and brags about it. Armed and trained by China, Zimbabwe, Czechoslovakia, Ghana, Tanzania, Uganda and the PLO, and partly financed by the US State Department (i.e., a $10 million grant in 1991), the Pan African Congress has begun to attack isolated White villages as the first stage of a Marxist-type people's war. The Pan African Congress's Azanian People's Liberation Army (APLA) has been trained in guerrilla warfare and is infiltrating military units into the RSA at this writing. The PAC models itself on Chinese revolutionists, whereas the ANC/SACP model themselves on Soviet revolutionary strategy and tactics.

It is often difficult to differentiate between ordinary crime and political violence and terrorism - but both have exploded (i.e., up seven fold) since the ANC/SACP were unbanned in early 1990 and since the De Klerk government released 75,000 terrorists, murderers, rapists, etc. (between December '90 and July '91) under pressure from the ANC/SACP and the US State Department. Lt. Col. Johan Mostert of the South African Police reported in February '91 that 22,000 people had died in crime-related incidents in the RSA in the prior 15 months.

The Johannesburg Star reported on 9/18/91 that in 1990 there were 15,109 murders, 125,000 serious assaults, 61,000 robberies, 20,321 rapes and 225,000 house breakins. The crime rate was far worse in 1991. As the Star reported: "South Africa is in the grip of an unprecedented crime wave with between 8,000 and 9,000 more serious crimes being reported nationally each month than in the prior year." It has been estimated that 23,000 people died in South African violence and murders in 1991. (Ninety-nine percent of those murderers will never be arrested or convicted.)

Whites, especially the elderly, are coming under increasing attack, with 102 elderly Whites murdered in 1991 (many in Mau Mau-type killings) and 621 seriously assaulted during robberies; while 144 policemen were murdered in 1991 (a 30% increase over 1990). The PAC has said that "policemen are the enemy who must be sought out and destroyed."

Over the past two years the crime and political violence has spread from the Black townships to the White suburbs where Whites are being attacked in their homes, on the streets and at work. The days of unlocked doors have long since disappeared in South Africa. Everything must be secured. Even in your car on the city streets in Johannesburg, you are not safe from hijacking and/or murder. Meanwhile, terrified residents are locking themselves behind bars in their homes, putting up spiked walls, electronic gates, and sleeping with guns at their sides. As AK-47s pour into South Africa from Mozambique, many robberies are now conducted with AK's.

[ED. NOTE: An AK can be bought for 64 rand along the Mozambique border or in Swaziland and for up to 2,000 rand on the streets in Johannesburg.]

Most Whites (or at least a relative, neighbor or friend) have had a car theft, burglary, rape, assault, etc. The civilized law-abiding citizens are now cowering behind bars in South Africa while bloodthirsty marauders, criminals and terrorists roam the streets. As law and order breaks down and fear sets in, anarchy is beginning to spread.

[ED. NOTE: While visiting the homes of several friends in the suburbs of Johannesburg, this writer found himself and his friends constantly looking over our shoulders, behind trees, or through bars for a potential attack. South Africans are beginning to live continually in the yellow or red zone as their stress levels go into orbit.]

In the Black townships anarchy reigns supreme as the ANC/SACP terrorists kill moderate Blacks who oppose them in any way or who resist going along with the revolution. (The ANC flag now flies openly in Crossroads - the big Black township near Cape Town.) Using Russian weapons, the ANC has systematically killed hundreds of Zulu chiefs, head men and other leaders and thousands of Inkatha Freedom Party members in Black townships across South Africa. Unfortunately, Zulu spears are no match for ANC automatic AK-47s. The ANC has been calling for the disarming of Inkatha members of their traditional weapons (i.e., spears, shields, and knoberry sticks) and the government has been going along with same. Moderate Blacks are beginning to hate the South African government for turning the ANC/SACP terrorists loose on them and denying the moderates the weapons to protect themselves with.

The ANC has succeeded in making many South African townships ungovernable by attacking all institutions of order or authority and terrorizing their staff (i.e., school teachers, police, counselors, debt collectors, bus drivers, housing inspectors, etc.) and it has succeeded. The outmanned, outgunned South African Police and a weak, vacillating, appeasement/surrender-oriented RSA government can no longer protect its people - Black or White.

[ED. NOTE: Moderate Blacks are beginning to organize neighborhood protection groups at this writing and the Zulus are organizing and fighting back as well.]

D. PEOPLE'S COMMUNES - THE LAUNCHING PAD FOR THE REVOLUTION

By calling for the establishment of self-defense units, it is clear that the ANC is changing the focus of its mobilization from its failed high profile mass marches and rallies to control of the townships through the establishment of "people's communes." It has to exercise total control over communities in order to manipulate the inhabitants at will, with the aim of overthrowing the government.

Discussing the Theory of State and Revolution and the guidelines for immediate revolutionary practice, Sisa Majola, an ANC theoretician, suggests that the extent of the revolution can be measured by "the number of people's communes we shall have helped organize in both town and countryside." He goes on to quote Lenin as describing democracy "guaranteed by a militia formed from a universally armed people...No people's commune can last indefinitely in our revolution if it does not create its own coercive force, its own army and people's militia, its own people's courts of justice (even if at first, justice has to be administered in the depth of the night) in short, a dictatorship of the people."

Majola also spells out the role of the self-defense units. "Here then lies the significance of building a people's army and militia inside South Africa, the small mobile units that wage guerilla warfare here and there, raiding armories and arms dumps in order to secure weapons for themselves, but at the same time diverting the racist armies and police from crushing the embryonic organs of people's power."

"People's communes aim at seizing control of every facet of life in their districts. Schools, rent offices, clinics, sports stadiums, beer halls and other such state-owned infrastructures as exist in the townships should be transferred into the hands of the community, so that these services will cease to operate under the aegis of the apartheid state." Thus government authority is ousted and the entire community is organized into a centrally controlled hierarchical system exercising control over every interest group in the community (workers, women, teachers, youth, students, etc.) as well as over every geographical area.

This then is the goal of the ANC's new emphasis of mass mobilization. Instead of concentrating on persuading people to join its mass marches, it will ensure, through its militia and courts, that all members of a community belong to its structures. All other political activity is denied and the impression created that the ANC has majority or total support in those areas. The freedom of choice of the individual will be totally disregarded. Moreover a charge will be levied, thus forcing the people to pay for the maintenance of the ANC structures. Thus, on the basis of tried and tested Marxist-Leninist revolutionary doctrine, people's communes become the foundation for the new political order which the ANC/SACP alliance envisages for South Africa.

With the above plan in mind, much of the recent activity of the ANC/SACP and its affiliates falls into place. The attacks on Black policemen and town councilors, the creation of self-appointed civic associations, the insistence that the authorities and businessmen negotiate with the civic associations instead of the elected town councils, are all aimed at replacing state control in the townships with "people's power," and at turning them into "people's communes." The establishment of self-defense units provides the muscle to totally oust the remnants of state control. Moreover, by "requesting" a monthly contribution from the inhabitants, the civic association is able to cover its administrative costs.

Setting up alternate structures to the existing government structures is classic Marxist-Leninist strategy used in the Cuban, Russian, Chinese, and Nicaraguan revolutions. The ANC/SACP alliance have stirred the violence until the people are war-weary. Now it promises peace, provided it can establish self-defense units to "protect the people" and replace government structures at the local level with its own - the administration run by civic associations, policing done by the self-defense units and "justice" administered by "people's courts."

It will thus expel both the government and rival political organizations from the areas under its control. Then by using its self-defense units as an invasion force, it will move into new Black areas. Once it controls all (or most) Black townships, it will hold the government to ransom by threatening to strangle White businesses and residential areas by calling a general strike.

E. MASS ACTION LEADING TO A GENERAL STRIKE

The ANC's model for mass mobilization is the 1986 people's revolution in the Philippines. Hundreds of thousands of people crowded the streets of Manila, bringing the city to a standstill. President Marcos had no alternative but to resign.

On November 4-5, 1991, Cosatu (Congress of South African Trade Unions) called a general strike to oppose the government's Value Added Tax (VAT). The general strike was supported by the ANC, PAC, SACP, AZAPO, the Black Consciousness Movement, the Black Business Federation, NAFCOC and FARCOS and the tax association. The strike was highly successful. An estimated 3.7 million workers (58% of the work force) stayed away. This was substantially higher than the September '89 stay away. The strike was successful because: 1) Of the lack of transport (buses and taxis didn't run and violence on commuter trains made workers avoid them); 2) Massive intimidation of Black workers. Vehicles with loudspeakers toured Soweto threatening to hack people to death and burn their homes if they defied the strike call.

On January 24, 1992, while this writer was in Cape Town, the ANC held a mass demonstration near the Parliament Buildings. (Note the picture of the flyers which were handed out.) The ANC/SACP alliance hope to turn mass demonstrations into a giant general strike that will pour millions into the streets and paralyze and thus topple, the RSA government (that is, if it has not already capitulated and handed over power). This is straight from the pages of the Russian Revolution!

F. ANC DOMINATION OF SOUTH AFRICAN SPORTS

Psychological warfare is an important part of a Marxist-Leninist revolution and the communists in South Africa have very cleverly used sports as a lever to manipulate the psyche of White South Africans, who are fanatical sports enthusiasts. The objective of the ANC/SACP is to win symbolic power in all the political, economic, cultural, and sports institutions before it competes in the first post-apartheid election. To get masses of people to turn out in the election, it must be the celebration of a liberation already achieved. Short of that, the election will be a huge anti-climax.

For two decades the ANC/SACP led a global crusade to get South Africa banned from international sporting events, including the Olympics. This has had a tremendously negative psychological impact on White South Africans. Now the International Community is beginning to allow South Africa back into international sports but under the auspices of the ANC/SACP, which controls NOCSA (National Olympic Committee of South Africa) and SANROC (South Africa Non-Racial Olympic Committee).

These ANC-controlled sports organizations have manipulated South Africa's participation in the Olympic games so that the RSA flag cannot be flown, neither the Springbok nor its colors can be displayed anywhere, and the national anthem cannot be played. (In its place, "Ode to Joy" will be played.) What an incredible blow to South Africans' pride! This is a strong psychological signal to the world and to the people of South Africa that the "Old South Africa" is no longer in power and that the ANC is. The ANC/SACP is also in the position of allowing or disallowing South African participation in international sports competitions just as they can start or stop the violence in South Africa. They can grant or withhold sports participation, or peace - powerful psychological leverage in any coming elections.

G. THE ANC'S MILITARY PREPARATIONS FOR SEIZURE OF POWER

"The ultimate goal for the national liberation struggle is the seizure of power...Seizure is a forcible act. It is clear when we talk about seizure of power that we envisage a struggle entailing various degrees of force. There can be no peaceable or friendly seizure...We should therefore set our sights on armed uprising by the masses, insuring as well that the armed struggle we have determined to prosecute is embraced by them and that they increasingly take part in it to sharpen their revolutionary tools of struggle." From an article in the London based The African Communist (Journal of the SACP - 1st quarter 1990) entitled "The Perspective of the Armed Seizure of Power."

The armed wing of the ANC/SACP alliance, Umkhonto we Sizwe (MK) is rapidly preparing military structures for seizure of power if the National Party government does not hand over power in the present negotiations and election (or referendum) which is likely to follow. Large supplies of Russian arms, including AK-47s, small arms ammo, land mines and rocket launchers have been smuggled into South Africa by MK into at least 10 secret arms dumps in the RSA and Transkei.

The arms are flowing in from Botswana, Zimbabwe, Tanzania, Zambia, Angola, and Mozambique (all Marxist-dominated Frontline States which are cooperating with and assisting the ANC/SACP alliance and MK). Zambia remains the head office for the ANC, while Tanzania serves as the main logistical center for the ANC. Mozambique serves as a staging post for MK members who then infiltrate South Africa via Swaziland.

MK is estimated to have up to 10,000 highly-trained terrorists who are presently at staging posts in countries bordering South Africa. More are being trained, with MK now openly recruiting in the Black townships of South Africa. Transkei has become an important training area for Umkhonto terrorists (along with Zimbabwe, Zambia, and Tanzania), and there is a strong evidence of close collaboration between the military regime in Transkei and the ANC's "army of liberation." MK leaders continue to receive training in Libya, Cuba, Russia, China and from the PLO.

[ED. NOTE: This writer interviewed two ex-ANC members who described their training in the Soviet Union as including: theoretical Marxist-Leninist strategy and tactics, sabotage, firearms use, psychological warfare, political training on how to mobilize people behind you, the setting up of cells, communications, etc.]

SELF-DEFENSE UNITS - MK terrorists are now being deployed in the various homelands such as Transkei, Venda, KaNgwane and in Black townships such as Soweto near Johannesburg and Mamelodi near Pretoria. MK has begun setting up so-called "self-defense units" in Black townships across the RSA. These Township Defense Forces (TDF's) are designed to have 2,000 MK troops in a hypothetical township of 20,000. Each TDF will be broken down into platoons and sections, with each section responsible for "defending" a street and intimidating and controlling the residents on that street (i.e., just as with the "block committees" in the Cuban Revolution).

The ANC has been circulating a detailed booklet for about a year entitled, "For the Sake of Our Lives: Guidelines for the Creation of People's Self-Defense Units" which describes the command structures, communications, spying, training, weapons structures and techniques in elaborate detail. The booklet was no doubt authored in Russia, Cuba, or China since it follows their Marxist-Leninist techniques for setting up such alternate township structures to the letter.

[ED. NOTE: One reason the communist revolution succeeded in Russia, Cuba, China and Nicaragua was their elaborate organizational structure (and the ignorance on the part of the targeted government of these structures and their revolutionary techniques). Marxist-Leninist revolutionaries are geniuses in the organizational aspects of a revolution - or rather they have learned their lessons well from two revolutionary geniuses - Lenin and Mao. The lesson for the targeted people and their leaders: Never underestimate your enemy!]

TOWARD A REGULAR ARMY - In late '91 it was reported that India had begun to train the ANC's Umkhonto we Sizwe forces in conventional warfare for a regular defense force (army, air force and navy) when the ANC comes to power. This regular ANC army is designed to replace the present SADF. The agreement for training (including naval training) is officially with Transkei (which doesn't even have a navy) but in actuality it is with the ANC. India has long sought to extend its influence in the mineral-rich states along the east coast of Africa and especially into South Africa via India's own expanding navy. An India/ANC military alliance would help to facilitate that goal.

Britain and France have begun to train MK guerrillas to become the New South Africa's regular army (just as the British trained Robert Mugabe's army in Zimbabwe after the Marxists took over in 1980) and Japan has been approached by the ANC for similar training. However, MK members will also continue to be trained in the "New Soviet Union" (or Russia) as well as Cuba.

[ED. NOTE: The most incredible part of this whole scenario is that in the midst of this communist military buildup in South Africa (and on its borders), the De Klerk government continues to negotiate its own destruction via the present Codesa negotiations. It has been said that "whom the gods will destroy, they first make mad." This would certainly seem to describe the De Klerk negotiations in the face of the present ANC/SACP armed revolutionary buildup. It should also be noted that the ANC sees civil war as an option and is using that as a lever to blackmail the National government into surrender.]

H. TOWARD GUN CONTROL: DISARMING THE NON-REVOLUTIONARY POPULACE

"It is only after we have disarmed the bourgeoisie that the proletariat, without betraying its world mission, can turn its weapons into plowshares. And that is the way the proletariat will act: but only then, and not by any means before." Vladimir Lenin Firearms owned by Whites in South Africa (which are estimated to be at least one each for 1.5 million Whites) are for the most part all licensed (registered). Automatic weapons are not legal for White South Africans except special licenses for farmers who have undergone terrorist attacks. In October '91, the National government (under pressure from the ANC) began a clamp down on firearm ownership with legislation to restrict ownership of guns to one gun only per owner. Licenses for purchase of firearms are now being routinely denied by the police (just as in New York and other large American cities).

[ED. NOTE: It should be noted that only a small number of crimes have been committed in South Africa by licensed gun owners.]

A new host of restrictions are in the pipeline (including 15-year sentences for gun control violations) that will restrict firearms acquisition and ownership, and which will ultimately lead to the disarming of the South African populace. No such restrictions (or jail sentences) will be placed on the ANC/SACP cadres and their vast quantities of illegal (non-licensed weapons). As the bumper sticker in America says: "When the guns are outlawed, only the outlaws (and tyrants) will have guns."

Liberals all over the world hate firearms. The New World Order knows that it must disarm citizens all over the world before it can enforce its domination. And the ANC/SACP is pushing for 'disarmament of the White population of South Africa, which is part of standard Marxist-Leninist revolutionary doctrine. The people first had to be disarmed in Russia, China and Cuba before the communist revolution could succeed.

[ED. NOTE: The ANC/SACP has also pushed the National government to keep firearms out of the hands of the Zulus, and to disarm the Zulus of their traditional weapons such as spears, sticks, and knobberies.]

The following story about the disarming of Cubans (beginning first with gun registration under Batista) should not be forgotten by freedom-loving South Africans. Several years ago, a Cuban/American defector from Castro's gulag told the following story:

"Cubans remember our own sad story of 'gun control.' Do Americans ever wonder what has enabled Castro to remain in power through so many years of blood, repression, and tyranny? What they now call 'effective gun control' in the US certainly proved very effective indeed in Cuba.

"It began innocently enough, years before Castro, with the registration of weapons. This was ostensibly done to 'combat crime.' Certainly an honest citizen, the argument went, would not object to registration. Only a criminal would not want gun registration. 'Good Cubans' want gun registration!"

"Handgun control was next. After the ground had been prepared by the appropriate media blitz of 'crime control,' humanitarian motives, accident control, arguments of 'only good for killing other people,' etc., stiff - very stiff indeed - handgun controls were legislated into law.

"All handguns of 'military' caliber were forbidden (such as .45 ACP, 9 mm Luger, .380 ACP) to civilians and confiscated by police. How did they know where the handguns were? The gun registration lists were their source of information.

"The remaining handgun owners (civilians) needed to be licensed and to show good cause for handgun ownership. It was a system guaranteed to insure that only friends of the party then in power retained their handguns. Penalties for breaking the law were harsh.

"At or about this time, more restrictive rules on shotguns and rifles were legislated. So far, the history of Cuban gun control was one of progressively more stringent and regulatory steps. Each one made it more hard and restrictive for the average, honest Cuban to have or use weapons for sport or self-defense.

"The end of all Cuban civilian firearms ownership came suddenly with the coming of Fidel Castro's communist revolution:

"Fidel Castro took over Cuba on January 1, 1959. On January 2, 1959, (one day later) his militia (armed with unregistered submachine guns, automatic rifles, handguns, and grenades) were taking over the police precincts and confiscating the gun registration lists. These were scrutinized for 'enemies of the revolution' and total gun confiscation began in earnest.

"In many cases, this was not easy to do as armed resistance took place when courageous Cubans did not submit to turning their firearms over. It was a hopeless resistance, since in those cases, the Cuban Revolutionary Army simply converged on that house and slaughtered everyone in it. Many innocent women and children were cruelly murdered this way. An already largely disarmed population could only stand by impotently as the communists completed total confiscation of all firearms.

"The disarmed Cuban people were then made ready for many more horrible things to come. Today, Fidel Castro and his army are still in control in Cuba. The Communist Party is the only party. There have been no elections in Cuba since the elections of 1958. The jails and concentration camps are full of abused, beaten, and starved political prisoners... The only weapons are in the hands of the armed forces and the secret police. Only government people are allowed the privilege of firearms."

The present South African government (like the Batista Cuban government in the mid-'50s) will start the gun control process (probably using the crime wave and "South Africa's dangerous right wingers" as their excuse and the ANC/SACP revolutionaries will finish the process if or when they come to power.

[ED. NOTE: This writer believes that if the De Klerk government moves (under pressure from the ANC, the State Department, and its own moles) to confiscate White firearms, this could well be the spark that ignites the civil war. But even if it doesn't, it should be remembered that if power is handed over to the ANC/SACP alliance, they will have instant access to the firearm registration/licensing lists - just as Castro did in 1959!]

I. TOWARD AN INTERIM GOVERNMENT

The ANC/SACP's primary goal, short of total power seizure, is the establishment of an interim or transitional government in which it will have a major

(if not controlling) stake. The interim government would set up a constituent assembly, arrange elections, and oversee the transition to a new government operating under the new constitution.

More importantly, it would control the security forces (i.e., the SADF and the South African Police). These would be restricted (as they were during the transition phase in Zimbabwe and Namibia) while MK would be allowed to run free to further intimidate the Black masses into voting for the ANC/SACP, just as the Patriotic Front and SWAPO murdered and intimidated tens of thousands of Blacks in those not-so-free internationally supervised elections in Zimbabwe in 1980 and Namibia in 1989. (The SADF would be confined to barracks under international supervision during the interim or transitional government period and the South African Police would be disarmed. Law and order would be maintained by the unarmed police force, the cooperating civic associations (i.e., controlled by the ANC) and by the International Community.)

The interim government (which will probably be called a Government of National Unity) is targeted for establishment by the National Party and the ANC by mid-1992 (or sooner) with the ANC pushing for a referendum via which it believes it can achieve total power before year end.

Once the interim government is set up and the ANC/SACP alliance have a major piece of the government, the surrender process and turnover of power to the communists becomes virtually irreversible or unstoppable short of civil war - which is likely to follow!

[ED. NOTE: In late '91, the ANC, PAC, and other South African liberation groups formed a united front called the Patriotic Front similar to the Patriotic Front in Zimbabwe that combined the Marxist forces of Mugabe and Nkoma against the moderate Whites and Blacks.]

CONCLUSION

Phase I of the Marxist-Leninist two phase revolution in South Africa, with the establishment of an interim or transitional government, is almost a fait accompli at this writing. The next step will be a new constitution (probably already drawn up by the US State Department and its comrades at Harvard University), next an internationally supervised election (probably orchestrated by the United Nations and other New World Order activists), and finally the establishment of a Government of National Unity which would be dominated by an ANC/SACP/National Party coalition with conservative/moderate Black and White parties in a minority position in the new government.

With Phase I of the two phase revolution accomplished, the South African Communist Party will then move on to Phase II, the purging of the liberal and minority conservative/moderate elements from the government, the establishment of a one party Marxist-Leninist Dictatorship of the Proletariat, and the abolition of freedom in the New South Africa - which by then may be called the People's Republic of Azania. This is the pattern which the communists used in Russia, in Cuba, and in Nicaragua (with some refinements) and they are very cleverly executing that revolutionary script once more in the Republic of South Africa.

IV. THE NATIONAL PARTY APPEASEMENT, BETRAYAL AND SURRENDER OF SOUTH AFRICA

"For this day's work, lords, you have encouraged treason and opened the prison doors to free the traitors. A nation can survive its fools, and even the ambitious. But it cannot survive treason from within. An enemy at the gates is less formidable, for he is known and carries his banners openly against the city. But the traitor moves among those within the gates freely, his sly whispers rustling through all the alleys, heard in the very halls of government itself. For the traitor appears no traitor; he speaks in the accents familiar to his victims, and he wears their face and their garments, and he appeals to the baseness that lies deep in the hearts of all men. He rots the soul of a nation; he works secretly and unknown in the night to undermine the pillars of a city; he infects the body politic so that it can no longer resist." Marcus Cicero, speaking to Caesar, Crassus, Pompey, and the Roman Senate

"Treason doth never prosper, what the reason? For if it prospers, none dare call it treason." Sir John Harrington

INTRODUCTION

After 34 trips to South Africa, after studying the country up close for 17 years and writing over 150 newsletters on the RSA, after visiting with leaders and people from all walks of life on this writer's January '92 tour of the RSA, this writer can reluctantly come to but one conclusion: The free peoples of South Africa are being sold out or betrayed to the ANC/SACP alliance by the National Party hierarchy who have cut a deal with them via the present Codesa process and other negotiations to turn power over to the Marxist-Leninist revolution. The deal appears to have already been cut - the fix is already in.

The National Party leadership hope to share power with the ANC/SACP alliance in the New South Africa and exclude the conservative/moderate Whites and Blacks (including the Zulus, King Goodwill, and Chief Minister Buthelezi) from power. The National Party leadership appears to this writer to have a terminal naivete regarding Marxist-Leninist techniques and strategies for negotiations, the two-phase revolution, and how they too will be excluded from the power sharing arrangement in Phase II of the revolution - US State Department promises to the contrary notwithstanding.

What the De Klerk government is selling to the people as reform and power sharing in the New South Africa is in reality a cleverly disguised surrender to the revolution and the communist hell which will follow. What South Africa is headed for is not Black majority rule - it is communist rule. The South African government and the political left in the business, educational, religious and media sectors have chosen to believe the deception that communism is dead and hence South Africa has nothing to fear from an ANC/SACP government - that their Marxist-Leninist pronouncements for the future of South Africa are simply rhetoric and nothing more. Anyone who dares to suggest that communism in Russia, Cuba, Nicaragua, Libya, Syria, the PLO, sub-Saharan Africa, or South Africa is still a threat, is dismissed as out of touch with reality, a mindless holdover from the cold war era.

[ED. NOTE: This writer believes that just as Satan's greatest accomplishment is to convince the masses that he does not exist, so the Marxist-Leninist's greatest accomplishment is to convince the masses that communism no longer exists. South Africans will continue to believe that lie at their own peril.]

This writer has long puzzled as to why powerful Afrikaaner and British South Africans would betray their country, not to Black rule, but to Marxist-Leninist rule under the ANC/SACP. There appears to be five possible reasons behind the National Party surrender and betrayal:

1. Allegiance to the New World Order instead of traditional South African sovereignty and the belief that they will have a prominent position in the New World Order.

2. Penetration of the National Party government at the highest levels by moles working for the US State Department or CIA, the British Foreign Office or British Intelligence, or for the KGB.

3. Political or financial blackmail or intimidation by the pro-ANC US State Department.

4. Bribery of, and betrayal by certain leaders for large moneys deposited by US government, N.W.O. agents, or the International Community in Swiss or other foreign bank accounts.

5. Raw, undiluted appeasement by weak and vacillating liberals (similar to Neville Chamberlain's appeasement of Hitler at Munich in 1938 which helped set the stage for World War II) and the belief that the ANC/SACP victory is inevitable, so why not negotiate the best peace possible.

Different National Party officials in all likelihood fall under one or more of these five motives. Regardless of the motives, however, the results of the present National Party betrayal and surrender will be an ANC/SACP government in the New South Africa, unless the freedom-loving peoples of all races stand up in unison and say "No!"

A. THE NATIONAL PARTY'S FAILED STRATEGY

A National Party government official this writer met with in January explained (off the record) the five-fold strategy of the National Party:

1. Eliminate world sanctions - That has been partially accomplished but at the price of surrender to the ANC. And the international bankers still will not roll over the RSA's international loans.

2. Gain credibility in the eyes of the International Community - That has been partially accomplished, but at the price of the deaths of tens of thousands of innocent moderate Blacks and the accelerating surrender to the ANC.

3. Restore South Africa as an active player in the world economic arena - This has not happened, nor is it likely to. Very few countries, banks, multinational corporations or investors who see the revolutionary situation in South Africa and hear the ANC/SACP threats to nationalize property and renege on international loans will invest in the New South Africa.

4. Gain the upper hand over the ANC/SACP in the Codesa talks or expose them for what they are (i.e., demythologize Mandela and the ANC) - The National Party has definitely not gained the upper hand in the talks. The ANC/SACP has the initiative, and is making all the demands, while the National Party retreats and accepts the ANC conditions. As far as exposing the ANC/SACP for what they are, the National Party has instead helped the communists to look strong (as if they are in the driver's seat) and themselves to look weak and impotent. (In Africa, power perceptions are very important - and the ANC now appears to be strong and calling the shots, and the National Party to be weak and in retreat.)

5. Genuinely negotiate a better dispensation with one-man-one-vote elections leading to genuine power sharing among the different groups - If National Party leaders believe this one, they are very naive indeed. The Marxist-Leninist ANC/SACP will and are negotiating circles around the National Party - the former knowing where they are going and the latter do not. The National Party's near total lack of understanding of the Marxist-Leninist revolutionary strategy and tactics analyzed above is their fatal flaw (as Shakespeare would say).

The government now knows that its strategy of appeasement and power sharing with the ANC is not working. The moderate Blacks hate the National Party for betraying them to ANC violence and so do the conservative farmers. The Nationals are no longer proactive - only reactive. In recent weeks, Mandela has come out in favor of De Klerk and this has further hurt De Klerk among the Whites. De Klerk and the National Party could not win a White election today.

President F W De Klerk and Nelson Mandela

Like Gorbachev in his last days in power, they have no support among the people except among White liberals (including the Anglo American-controlled Democratic Party). De Klerk is popular in the liberal media and within the International Community but much less so with conservative/moderate Blacks and Whites. Meanwhile, De Klerk is receiving massive pressure from George Bush, the State Department and his own National Intelligence Service (which is heavily infiltrated by the US CIA) to enter into an alliance with the ANC.

The Nationals may have believed at one point that if the ANC pulled out of the negotiations and launched a war, that they could then put them down with the backing of the International Community. But the State Department won't let the ANC pull out of the negotiations. Why should they, when everything is going according to the ANC/SACP/State Department script?

The National Party is viewing this whole peace/power sharing process as a giant bridge hand. Indeed, a powerful cabinet minister once bragged to this writer several years ago that the release of Mandela was the National Party's trump card, which when played, would turn the tide in favor of the National Party and against the ANC. Another National Party official explained that the release of Mandela would divide the ANC, and that they would then split the Blacks into factions that would fight and weaken one another and that would save the day. They played the trump card and lost! Even though they have treated Buthelezi and his Inkatha Freedom Party badly (having ignored them and relegated them to the status of a non-player) the Nationals believe they can always return to the Zulus and use them as a trump card if all else fails.

The ANC/SACP, on the other hand, view the whole exercise as a chess match, and have a far more sophisticated strategy which is being orchestrated by Marxist-Leninist revolutionary planners in the KGB, and globalists in the State Department - who are far more Machiavellian and clever. The National Party strategists are out of their league when it comes to manipulating events. They have also embarked down the slippery slope of surrender from which there may be no return. Indeed today the South African government is truly a caretaker government with power already transferred on a defacto basis to the ANC.

B. APPEASEMENT AND SURRENDER TO THE ANC

The South African government appears to be following a plan outlined by Professor Samuel Huntington of Harvard University (who has visited South Africa on 17 occasions. Put simply, his policy is: Keep the right wing happy by making promises or assurances; keep the radicals happy by doing the opposite (i.e., making concessions); and above all don't let anyone know what your real intentions are. Some observers fear, however, that in spite of the promises to the right and concessions to the left, that there is no real plan - except to share power in an alliance with the ANC/SACP or simply turn over power to them.

[ED. NOTE: Over 60% of National Party members and many other South Africans believe that the De Klerk government has a plan B, a surprise option that will save the day at the eleventh hour and that De Klerk would never sell out the Afrikaners. The people of Rhodesia believed this in 1979 and '80 and the people of Namibia believed likewise in 1989 and '90. But there was no plan B, or if there was, it was never implemented in those two formerly free countries. This writer believes that the National government has only one plan - to turn over power to the ANC as prescribed by the US State Department and the International Community.]

Evidence of the National Party's appeasement, compliance to ANC and US State Department demands, and surrender to the ANC/SACP is voluminous and proliferating:

1. The release of Nelson Mandela and other ANC terrorist leaders.

2. The unbanning and legalization of the ANC and SACP and allowing their terrorists to enter South Africa - and with large supplies of Russian-made weapons.

3. The release of 75,000 terrorists, murderers, rapists, and other criminals in 1990 and '91 - which helped precipitate the greatest crime wave in South African history (including 23,000 murders and political killings in '91). According to one South African Police official this writer interviewed, the National Party government released 37,000 criminals (and terrorists) in December '90, and there were 120,000 serious crimes over the next 30 days; they released 23,000 criminals in May '91, and there were 121,000 serious crimes over the next 30 days; and they released 15,000 more criminals in July '91, and there were 122,000 serious crimes in the next 30 days. [ED. NOTE: If this writer was one of those crime victims, he would not look too kindly on a National Party government which released 75,000 criminals onto the streets in seven months in order to placate the ANC, the US State Department and the International Community.]

4. Moves to control (or preclude) gun ownership by Whites - in the midst of South Africa's greatest ever crime wave.

5. Under pressure from the ANC, on July 29, De Klerk removed his hardline (or quasi-hard line) Minister of Defense, Magnus Malan and Minister of Law and Order Adrian Vlok and replaced them with two National Party liberals, Roelf Meyer and Hernus Kriel. Meyer is accelerating the dismantling of the SADF and is expected to preside over the merger of the SADF with Umkhonto we Sizwe into the New SADF.

6. The De Klerk government, in compliance with ANC/State Department dictates, is rapidly dismantling the once formidable SADF; is abolishing national service; has dealt a major blow to SADF morale by agreeing to no longer prosecute draft dodgers and ruling that soldiers can disobey orders if they believe they are unconstitutional or violate international law; has forced numerous military and South African Police hardliners, who could be expected to oppose the dismantling of the SADF and appeasement of criminals and revolutionaries, into early retirement; and has employed the help of the German Ministry of External Affairs and a German Army Major in formulating a plan for the merger of what's left of the SADF and the ANC's Umkhonto we Sizwe. [ED. NOTE: Is the fix in? Is the surrender a fait accompli?]

The Sunday Times (1/26/92) carried an article entitled, "The Agony of a Dying Army" by one of South Africa's most highly decorated Special Forces officers, Col. J. Breytenbach which sums up the Nationalist Party dismantling of the SADF:

"Our yuppie Minister of Defence has finally done it. He has destroyed the life of the defence force by draining its already near-comatose body of its discipline, in perhaps the most idiotic shambles ever inflicted on a modern army. Even a suggestion that draft dodgers will not be prosecuted means that the SADF corpse can be buried in the not-too-distant future with, perhaps, MK stepping into the vacuum. To try to resurrect it with a new professional army will be a futile exercise, because its soul will have been destroyed with a massive infusion of anarchy."

"Given all this confusion, can anybody rightfully stop a serviceman from walking out of the gate and telling his unit to get lost? Meyer and his contradictory statements has achieved in six months or less what South Africa's enemies could not achieve in nearly 80 years of often very violent and desperate conflict. He has destroyed the honor, pride and esprit de corps of the SADF. I want to suggest that he sticks to those things he does best - singing like a canary, and enthusiastically shaking hands with unrepentant communists - while leaving the real soldiers, sailors and airmen to run their outfits in the time-honored military tradition built on a solid base of discipline."

SA Defense Minister Roelf Meyer Joking With Long-time Head of SA Communist Party Joe Slovo at Negotiations.

[ED. NOTE: Minister of Defense Roelf Meyer has said that the SADF will now be used to protect the reform process by providing stability during negotiations. In other words, the SADF will now be used to protect the process of handing power over to the ANC and will be used against conservative or Zulu opposition to the betrayal. The South African Police will also be used by the government against conservative opposition to handover of power.]

7. The De Klerk government has made concessions to the ANC/SACP at virtually every turn of the road. In September '91, for example, the Nationals signed a National Peace Accord with the ANC/SACP that made the following concessions:

a) NPA ignored Umkhonto we Sizwe (MK), the joint armed wing of the ANC and the SACP. It did not require it to surrender its arms caches or the AK-47 assault rifles responsible for the overwhelming majority of the deaths in the political violence that is sweeping South Africa;

b) NPA legalized self-defense units as defined by the ANC, thus opening the way for legalization of MK;

c) NPA hamstrung the police by imposing on them a stringent code of conduct but failed to impose a similar code on MK;

d) NPA removed the police from the control of the legally constituted government and made them responsible to the non-elected National Peace Committee;

e) NPA gave the ANC a major role in controlling the police;

f) NPA set up a complicated, interlocking, tripartite administrative pyramid of powerful State-funded committees resembling Cuba's Committees for the Defence of the Revolution;

g) In so doing, NPA created a form of centralized, partial interim government which implies the rejection of federal structures for the "New" South Africa;

h) NPA implements a costly socialist program of socio-economic reconstruction and development which, together with the bloated bureaucratic structures it creates, ensures that the "New" South Africa will move in the direction of socialism;

i) NPA ignored God, both in the search for peace and in the construction of the "New" South Africa, even through the conference was sponsored by leading liberal churchmen.

The tremendous powers given to the National Peace Committee by the NPA and associated bodies creates a power structure parallel to that of the government. In effect it is a limited form of interim government. Moreover the structure bares a striking resemblance to the pyramid of control found in every Marxist country. In the USSR, the local committees, regarded as a symbol of government by the masses, were called soviets. After 1917 the Bolsheviks dominated the soviets, developed them as a rival to Kerensky's provisional government and used them to undermine it. In Cuba they are called Committees for the Defense of the Revolution. In Nicaragua, Sandanista Defense Committees combined the role of self-defense units and socio-economic development agencies. In times past, the ANC has called such committees the M-plan or the Mandela plan. These are the structures now created in South Africa by the "Peace" accord and financed by the State!

8. The Codesa (Convention for A Democratic South Africa) talks which began in December are a stacked deck, designed to enhance the negotiating position of the ANC/SACP/National Party alliance and weaken the position of the conservative/moderate Black and White groups or parties. The negotiations are a charade - the deal has already been cut between the National Party and the ANC. It is obvious to anyone looking closely at Codesa that it's main goal is to set up an interim government between the ANC, SACP and the National Party. Chief Buthelezi and his Inkatha Freedom Party will be relegated to an insignificant role as will conservative Whites.

Most moderate Blacks were excluded from the negotiations including King Goodwill Zweliteni (king of 7 million Zulus), and the Kwazulu government, while the ANC, SACP, the National Party and the South African government were all given separate seats. The Federal Independent Democratic Alliance (FIDA), a moderate/Christian/Black party with 450,000 signed up members, was excluded from Codesa. (The SACP only has 25,000 members.) It is obvious that the composition of Codesa was totally packed by the left and the agenda and outcome predetermined.

The Conservative Party, which would probably win a Whites only election, wisely chose to stay out of Codesa so as to not legitimize it. The National Party and ANC want the Conservative Party in Codesa so it will be bound by its results. The Conservative Party leader, Dr. Andries Treurnicht, explained to this writer in a meeting at the Parliament Building in Cape Town in January that the Conservative Party is against negotiating at all with the communists (i.e., ANC/SACP) because they are evil and because they will always break their word - it means nothing. Codesa, the National Party, the ANC and SACP have accepted the State Department concept of a one man-one vote unitary state. The Conservative Party, the Zulus, and the Tswanas all disagree with this since they don't want to be ruled by the ANC/SACP.

Treurnicht, a very devout Christian, also explained that Codesa has excluded the Christian God of the Bible or at least relegated him to the level of Mohammad, Hinduism or communist atheism. The opening prayer of Codesa was prayed to all of these Gods or religions. This Christian issue is very important to many of the Conservative Party leaders, who are devout Christians and harken back to the Christian foundations and heritage of South Africa. Codesa will abolish this Christian heritage in favor of atheism, Liberation Theology, Hinduism, Mohammedanism and New Ageism.

[ED. NOTE: Codesa is not likely to succeed because of the absence of the Conservative Party (which now probably speaks for the majority of South African Whites); the exclusion of Zulu King Goodwill Zweliteni; the second class status relegated to the Zulus, Chief Minister Buthelezi and his Inkatha Freedom Party; and the exclusion of moderate and Christian Black and White organizations. Inkatha and the Bophuthotswana government of President Lucas Mangope have wisely refused to sign the Declaration of Intent binding themselves to Codesa's results. When the Zulus finally walk out, as eventually it seems they must, Codesa will collapse.]

Codesa is to be the framework not only for the setting up of an interim government, but for the dismantling of the SADF, the merger of SADF and MK, and the handover of power to the ANC. Secret agreements appear to have been reached between the ANC and NP prior to negotiations. It is significant how rapidly those two parties reached agreement on most fundamental issues, with De Klerk agreeing to an interim government by mid-'92.

9. In August '91, it was discovered (and extensively covered in four national newspapers) that SABC TV (the government-run TV network) was regularly broadcasting subliminal pictures of Mikhail Gorbachev, F.W. de Klerk, and Nelson Mandela buried within the logo right before the 8:00 p.m. evening news program and the Good Morning South Africa news program. The images were flashed on the screen in 1/25 of a second, cannot be seen with the naked eye, and sink unknowingly into people's subconscious mind to make them unknowingly more receptive towards the message.

A television film is made up of 25 optic frames per second and it is possible to change frames with electronic editing equipment. Since most South Africans watch SABC-TV news daily, it would be possible to subtly brainwash them with a pro-De Klerk, pro-Gorbachev, pro-Mandela/ANC, or pro-New World Order message as they watch the news or other TV programs over a period of time. SABC-TV executives at first denied the airing of these subliminal messages but after several newspapers recorded the footage and proved the allegations, and a Durban businessman threatened to sue SABC if it didn't halt the messages, SABC abruptly withdrew them.

[ED. NOTE: Coca Cola successfully experimented with subliminal messages a few years ago on theater audiences and increased their Coke sales by 76%. The potential for brainwashing a populace in favor of "Peace at any Price," or "Support the ANC," or "the ANC Will Win," or "Support Gorbachev or Yeltsin," or "Support the New World Order" etc. is horrendous. This writer wonders if subliminal messages on the New World Order were not broadcast during "Operation Desert Storm" as the whole world sat glued to their TV screens.]

CONCLUSION

It seems most obvious to this writer that the De Klerk government has cut a deal with the ANC which it believes will lead to powersharing and a coalition government between the ANC/SACP and the National Party, and which the ANC believes will eventuate into total ANC domination of the RSA. It appears to this writer that in many ways the ANC has already taken over the government from the weak and vacillating National Party and is simply in the process of implementing the changeover at present. The initiative is completely in the hands of the ANC/SACP with the National Party simply reacting to each new ANC demand or change in tactics.

At best, the De Klerk government is simply liberal, weak, incompetent, vacillating, and surrendering South Africa to the ANC on a piecemeal basis because of its appeasement orientation. Certainly such people surrendered to Hitler in Europe in the late 1930s, and helped set the stage for World War II.

At worst, the De Klerk government is riddled with moles who have long since been co-opted by the US State Department, the British Foreign Office, the International Community and/or the New World Order - moles who are willing to condemn South Africa to a communist hell under the ANC/SACP alliance and risk one of the greatest blood baths in all of history.

There is one South African traitor, with close ties to the US State Department and CIA, and the KGB, who stands out above all others in South Africa, and thinking South Africans recognize who this man is. It is believed by many that he helped to orchestrate South Africa's betrayal of Ian Smith and Rhodesia; South Africa's betrayal of Namibia; the US-authored UN Resolution 435; the Nkomati Accords; the bloodless coup against P. W. Botha (which happened shortly before the State President was about to reveal massive corruption within his own cabinet within the Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Finance, and Education/Culture); the present US-directed Codesa negotiations (or deal) with the ANC; and the present surrender of South Africa to the ANC/SACP alliance and ultimately to the New World Order.

Presidents Bush and De Klerk

Indeed New World Order thinking seems to have permeated the De Klerk government at virtually every level. The parallel between the Bush government and the De Klerk government is really rather intriguing - the former pushing for the merger of America and Russia under the framework of the UN-dominated New World Order and the latter pushing for the merger of the National Party and the ANC/SACP under the framework of the UN-dominated New World Order. Neither government seems loyal to its own constitution, traditional way of life, people, or national sovereignty.

The New South Africa will be part of the African region of the New World Order - probably to be run from Pretoria. THE QUESTION ARISES: Why do the agents of the New World Order (both in and out of South Africa) want to convert South Africa into a Marxist-Leninist dominated hell? THE ANSWER: Because it will be easier to control, manipulate and milk (or exploit) the vast mineral wealth of the former RSA. The raw materials will still be there, the world markets will still be there, but the labor (slave labor, as in Red China) will be so much cheaper. The profit potential is astronomical.

Some of South Africa's most powerful politicians and business leaders have been promised by their American counterparts a prominent position in the African region of the New World Order. They have been promised that with the help of their friends in America and Europe that they will be able to manipulate and control from behind the scenes a Marxist-Leninist ANC government in the New South Africa (just as wealthy American and European finance capitalists of the New World Order persuasion believe they can manipulate and exploit Red China, Russia and other Marxist hellholes via their money, power, and influence). These South African leaders have been promised great behind the scenes power and wealth in the future New South Africa/New World Order dispensation in return for their betrayal of the "Old South Africa."

This writer believes that in spite of the pride and arrogance of the New World Order leaders in America, Europe and South Africa, that the Marxist-Leninist leaders in Russia, China, and South Africa are not as dumb as their Western benefactors think (or maybe "dumb like foxes"), and that in fact via their evil genius and Machiavellian ability to control and manipulate events themselves, they may remain in power, and grow in power much longer than the New World Order leaders suppose. The question is, who is manipulating who? Communism is not dead (ask Nelson or Winnie Mandela, Joe Slovo, Chris Hani, Deng Xiao Ping, or Fidel Castro) and the New World Order may not be as much in control as it thinks it is!

[ED. NOTE: On 2/19/92, the National Party suffered a landslide defeat to the Conservative Party at the local bi-election at Potchefstroom. Shortly thereafter, in a desperate move, the De Klerk government called for an immediate referendum to see whether the NP or CP would represent the Whites in the Codesa negotiations. The NP might conceivably win the referendum since the CP wants no part of Codesa, but the CP would now easily win a general election against the NP. The NP will avoid such a general election at all costs. Events are accelerating rapidly at this writing.]

V. THE US STATE DEPARTMENT: ORCHESTRATING THE SURRENDER

The US State Department is dictating the terms of surrender to the National government and also helping to write the script on a day-to-day basis for the ANC/SACP alliance. It is no secret that for over 15 years the State Department has supported Frelimo in Mozambique; Mugabe and Nkomo in Rhodesia and Mugabe since he came to power in Zimbabwe in 1980; SWAPO in South West Africa; and the ANC in South Africa. This should come as no surprise to South Africans or Americans since that same State Department supported the rise of Mao Tse Tung in China, Castro in Cuba, Khomeini in Iran, the Sandanistas in Nicaragua, and Aquino in the Philippines. The State Department loves "stability," and apparently believes that Marxist-Leninist governments bring more stability than free ones.

It should never be forgotten that the State Department and its leftist operatives are masters of manipulation, deception, and double crosses. The Bush State Department has been pushing the De Klerk government to move forward quickly with its reforms and handover of power to the ANC, to avoid sinking into a Soviet-style situation. The State Department has pointed out that "Gorbachev's reforms were too late and were not carried out with the determination and ruthlessness the situation demanded. De Klerk must therefore make sure that the reform/negotiation process moves swiftly and is not long and drawn out."

[ED. NOTE: For a totally different analysis of events in the Soviet Union, read MIA's September/October '91 issue entitled: "The Rebirth of the Empire: What is Really Happening in the Soviet Union".]

One of the notable aspects of the State Department advice; of the present New World Order agenda; of Bush and De Klerk's disarmament; and of the plunge toward a New South Africa is the speed with which the planners are pushing events along. They must fear that if events move too slowly, people will begin to wake up and catch on to what they are doing.

[ED. NOTE: One of the problems the ANC/SACP revolution has had is that it has moved too slowly, it has been seen for what it is by millions of Black moderates who are beginning to organize resistance in the townships and it has lost some credibility and momentum along the way - although the latter has now accelerated with the Codesa process.]

A. US AND WESTERN FUNDING OF THE ANC/SACP

The ANC/SACP have for years received most of their funding from foreign governments and leftist groups including large church organizations. The American government has poured hundreds of millions of dollars into the revolutionary movements in Southern Africa over the past 15 years. In 1991 alone the Bush Administration gave $10 million to the Pan African Congress and $3 million to the ANC. (Another $10 million to the ANC was blocked by the US Congress because of the ANC's close ties to the SACP.) On 3/5/91 Assistant Secretary of State Herman Cohen announced the US would donate $40 million to help facilitate the changeover to Black (i.e., ANC/SACP) rule. Most of that sum will go to leftist groups aligned with the ANC/SACP. The US is funneling aid to the various ANC groups through fronts. (It's called "laundering.")

Other Western governments in the forefront of support for the ANC are France (a big supporter of the ANC), Canada, the Scandinavian countries, the Netherlands, Australia, as well as pro-ANC trade unions and the World Council of Churches. It is estimated that the ANC has received over $200 million from Western sources over the past five years - making it by far the richest political organization in South Africa.

[ED. NOTE: By way of contrast, the Inkatha Freedom Party, which is pro-Western, pro-free enterprise, and pro-Christian, and which is over three times the size of the ANC gets virtually no foreign funding.]

In 1991 Sweden gave the ANC $31 million; Denmark - $2.1 million; Finland - $1.6 million; Australia - $11 million ('90-'93); Spain - $3.3 million; the European Community - $70 million; Germany - $10 million; Switzerland - $10 million; France - $8 million; Nigeria - $1.7 million; Algeria - $1 million; Libya - $330,000; Zimbabwe - $330,000; etc. Norway has given the ANC $98 million since the late 1960s. These foreign contributions to the ANC are in stark contrast to the meager $3.5 million the ANC was able to raise inside South Africa, 90% of which came from large grants. These numbers underline the fact that the ANC's main power base is in the International Community and its support in South Africa is minimal.

A number of Western governments including England, France and Germany have either given or are considering also giving military assistance or training to the ANC. The British Foreign Office, which is as pro-ANC as the US State Department, is pushing for such training at this writing.

B. US GOALS IN SOUTHERN AFRICA

The US has moved from Constructive Engagement Part I under Chester Crocker (in the 1980s) to Constructive Engagement Part II under Herman Cohen (in the 1990s). Part I was the slow strangulation of the RSA via sanctions. Part II is to force Codesa down all South African parties' throats, force an interim government into place, and bring the ANC/SACP alliance to power. US Ambassador William Swing (and his staff) are functioning as the scriptwriters for both the ANC and the South African government in the present Codesa exercise - and advising the ANC when to take a hard line, when to be conciliatory, when to attack De Klerk, when to support him, etc. (i.e., the good cop/bad cop routine).

OTHER US GOALS IN SOUTHERN AFRICA INCLUDE:

1. The dismantling of the SADF and the scrapping of three large super secret high tech South African arms projects and virtually all other defense projects.
2. The establishment of diplomatic relations between the New Soviet Union (i.e., the Commonwealth of Independent States) and the New South Africa and a closer relationship between the two.

3. The establishment of a regional government in Southern Africa as a part of the New World order scheme described above.

4. Expansion of a US/UN/NWO military presence into Southern Africa via US and French military bases in Botswana, in case a UN invasion force needs to be brought into the region to quell a South African civil war and forcibly install the ANC.

C. US/FRENCH MILITARY OPERATIONS IN BOTSWANA

Two large air bases are under construction in the desert in Botswana (to the north of South Africa). One is being built by France at a cost of $356 million and will be equipped with state-of-the-art French military aircraft. The other is even a bigger mystery but is apparently being built at Molopolole, 130 kilometers northwest of Botswana's capital of Gaborone. This base was started in 1989 apparently by America but work was halted on it in February 1990. This base was originally intended to be able to handle US B-52s and Stealth bombers.

One well-placed source in the National government told this writer that the South African government was threatened by the US government in early 1990 that it could be attacked from this base; that the De Klerk government took the threat seriously and announced the unbanning of the ANC and SACP in February '90, and a few days later construction was halted on the US Botswana base. Another source said that the billion dollar base is now being completed by Saudi Arabia (for America). In January '92, over 300 members of the US 325th Infantry Brigade conducted two-week desert warfare exercises with the Botswana Defense Force in the Botswanan desert.

What do these air bases and the US military exercise mean? There certainly is no visible threat to Botswana. Are the US and France trying to intimidate South Africa that if they don't hand over power to the ANC that they could be the target of Operation Desert Storm Part II? Are the US and France preparing for a UN "peacekeeping" operation if civil war should break out in South Africa? At this point no one seems to know what the air bases mean - but they bear close watching. This is most peculiar at a time when America is shutting down military bases all over the world in the wake of the perceived "end of communism" and "the end of the cold war."

VI. CAN SOUTH AFRICA SURVIVE AS A FREE NATION: POSSIBLE SCENARIOS

"Where there is no vision, the people perish."
Proverbs 29:18

INTRODUCTION

The scenario of revolution, betrayal, and handover of power to the ANC/SACP analyzed above is not a pleasant one. It could eventuate in Marxist/Leninist rule of South Africa or in civil war, with massive bloodshed on all sides. It could turn into total anarchy or a Lebanese-type situation. On the other hand, as they say in an American football game, "it's not over, till it's over." So far, we've all heard from the ANC/SACP, from the liberal National Party, from the US State Department, from the International Community who support the ANC/SACP, and from the pro-ANC South African and international press.

But we haven't heard from the two most powerful, toughest, most stubborn, most tenacious and most Christian groups in South Africa - the Afrikaanders and the Zulus. One could argue that De Klerk and his government are Afrikaanders, and that the powerful Broederbond are run by the Afrikaander elite. But these Afrikaanders are liberals, appeasers, globalists who think more in terms of the New World Order and Liberation Theology than of their traditional South African Bible-based heritage. This writer does not believe that they represent the vast majority of South African Afrikaanders whom this writer believes will not simply roll over and surrender their power, their land, and their right to self-determination to the ANC/SACP Marxist-Leninist alliance.

Nor will the vast majority of Zulus, including their leaders King Goodwill Zweliteni and Chief Minister Mangosuthu Buthelezi, submit to an atheistic, anti-Christian communist regime run by their chief rival tribe, the Xhosas. The Afrikaanders and the Zulus could conceivably be deceived and manipulated by Bush, the State Department, and the National Party for a time - but when the reality of their betrayal finally sinks in, there is likely to be a backlash of enormous and frightening proportions.

Some Whites will leave, others will submit on the basis of "peace at any price," but the majority will resist a handover of power to the ANC - either with ballots or bullets. A very real possibility exists of an emerging alliance between the conservative/moderate Afrikaanders, the Zulus, the Tswanas, and other moderate/Christian Blacks and Whites who would suffer greatly under ANC/SACP rule. (Many liberal Whites will line up with the ANC/SACP and NP.) This could eventuate in a bloody civil war, but it could also evolve into a partitioning of South Africa into a confederation of 12 or 13 independent states based on tribal, linguistic and cultural differences.

In spite of the ominous developments analyzed in most of this report, this writer left South Africa in January with a degree of sober optimism - because there does seem to be viable alternatives to ANC/SACP rule or civil war. Those alternatives will be discussed below:

A. WHITE EXODUS - WHO WILL FLEE, WHO WILL SUBMIT AND WHO WILL FIGHT?

The question is, as ANC rule or civil war approaches, who will run, who will submit and who will fight? FIRST, out of almost 5 million Whites, 600,000-700,000 (perhaps up to a million) can be expected to flee (or join what is commonly called the "chicken run") to other countries. Those will be people by and large with foreign passports and relatives overseas. Great Britain is making preparations for between 500,000 and 1,000,000 people evacuating South Africa when Marxist rule or civil war commences.

Many Jewish and English families, who see no future in a Black Marxist-ruled South Africa have begun to leave, although exchange controls will make it very difficult for them to take most of their money with them. (The most a family can take is 200,000 rand; a single person 100,000 rand.) Some leading figures such as Dr. Christian Barnard have already begun to emigrate. The primary countries these emigrants will flee to will be Paraguay, Australia, the United Kingdom, America, New Zealand, and Canada.

SECOND, based on the Rhodesia experience, about 25% of the White population will submit to Marxist rule, hoping for the best and hoping that they will be able to keep most of their assets, keep a low profile, and keep on earning a decent living. This will include many South African businessmen, who even at this late stage are more concerned about making money than the future freedom of their country. As several businessmen told this writer on his recent trip to the RSA: "We leave politics to the politicians." As leftist radical, Saul Alinsky once said, "As for businessmen, I could persuade a capitalist on Friday to bankroll a revolution on Saturday that will bring him a profit on Sunday even though he will be executed on Monday." There are likely to be 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 who will submit to the Marxists and perhaps 25-30% of these will be liberals who will actually collaborate with and support the ANC/SACP government.

THIRD are the patriots which will number two to three million and who will refuse to accept anything other than complete freedom and self-determination. These are the Afrikaanders and English who will not flee, who will not submit, and who will fight. Most of this group will be Afrikaanders.

B. WHITE BACKLASH

A formidable groundswell of opposition among Whites and especially Afrikaanders to the National Party handover of power to the ANC/SACP alliance is beginning to build across South Africa at this writing. The government's continued alliance with the ANC, its tolerance of Umkhonto we Sizwe, and its inability to combat crime and economic depression are creating a tremendous White backlash against the government, and this is not just among far right Afrikaanders.

The Conservative Party, headed by Dr. Adrie Treurnicht, would probably win a Whites only national election handily (since it is consistently defeating the National Party in local by-elections) by a landslide. The Conservative Party now has the support of the majority of Afrikaanders and is picking up more English and Jewish support every day. But there probably will not be such an election, since one is not scheduled until 1994, well after the handover of power to the ANC/SACP is scheduled to have taken place.

There is an anger building among Afrikaanders which is beginning to frighten the National Party and the political left. Even many liberal Jewish South Africans (who will take a stronger stand against the ANC than the National Party and who don't want to lose everything they've worked for) would now vote for the Conservative Party. The National Party is picking up some support among moderate Blacks, Coloreds and Indians but is rapidly losing its White support base.

[ED. NOTE: There is also a Black backlash underway against the ANC. Moderate Blacks are beginning to organize into vigilante groups in the Black townships and fight back.]

C. THE ZULU FACTOR

The Zulu nation (numbering 7 million - the largest population group in South Africa), along with the Afrikaans, is the strong suit in the whole South African equation. King Goodwill and Chief Buthelezi are Christians, are anti-communist, and are men of principle and integrity, which is far more than can be said for the National Party leadership which has dealt duplicitously with the Zulus at every turn of the road. Chief Buthelezi is a strong Christian, a strong leader and a friend of this writer, but has been double crossed, and shunted aside by De Klerk in favor of Mandela. The Zulu people are a strong, anti-communist people, more highly Christianized than any of the other tribal groups (i.e., real Christianity, not just shallow denominationalism or liberation theology) and have a tradition for being fierce warriors which has been bred into them since their forefather Shaka founded the Zulu nation.

The Zulus will never live under Mandela or the ANC, which is comprised primarily of the Xhosa tribe. King Goodwill Zweliteni has said that the Zulus will fight rather than be ruled by another tribe. The Zulus are a very patient people, but when they get mad, they are very, very violent. Shaka bred them that way. The Zulus have one half million Impi warriors (under the direct command of the King) with 200,000 of them in the PWV industrial heartland of South Africa - stretching from Pretoria to Sasolburg. There are a total of 1-1/2 million Zulus in the PWV area.

The Zulus have been heavily attacked by the ANC in Black townships around South Africa, but in spite of losing thousands (including 168 Inkatha Freedom Party branch leaders) have fought back hard and probably taken an even larger toll on the ANC. The cry "the Zulus are coming" strikes terror into the hearts of the ANC. When one Zulu is killed, the Zulus often kill 10-15 ANC's in retaliation.

Nevertheless, the ANC are armed with Russian weapons and the Zulus with sticks, spears, and knobberies (traditional Zulu weapons). The National Party government has kept firearms for the most part out of the hands of the Zulus and has begun to yield to ANC pressure to restrict traditional Zulu weapons. There are about 1.5 million AK-47s floating around in Mozambique, and if the Zulus had the funds, they could acquire a lot of these. At present, the Zulus desperately need training and weapons. Many of the communist nations in the world and many Western nations are giving arms and training to the ANC but none to the Zulus. The Zulus also need a big radio station, or a series of small radio stations they could place around the country. Once again, no funds are available.

INKATHA FREEDOM PARTY - Several years ago Chief Minister Buthelezi started the Inkatha Freedom party, which today has 2.2 million card carrying members (by far the largest political party in South Africa) in contrast to the ANC which claims it has 600,000 members (but can only prove membership of 150,000) and the South African Communist which claims it has membership of 25,000. Over 80% of the Zulus are strong supporters of IFP. In mid-1990, IFP opened up its membership to non-Zulus and today that membership is 42% non-Zulu, with 47,000 White members in the Johannesburg area alone. The IFP did recently get $2.8 million from the US while the ANC got $7 million. Unfortunately, the ANC gets hundreds of millions of dollars in financial support from all over the Western world and IFP gets virtually none.

Today Inkatha controls about 80% of Soweto, and it is relatively quiet at this writing. Moderates have become used to the violence and have decided to defend themselves against it. Anti-ANC vigilante groups are forming in the townships. The IFP is part of Codesa, but King Goodwill was excluded along with the KwaZulu government. The IFP refused to sign the binding Codesa Declaration of Intent and Buthelezi will not attend the negotiations because of the snubbing of the King. If or when the IFP walks out of Codesa, it will collapse.

There is growing respect in South Africa for Buthelezi as a leader and a man of vision. But for him to come to power, he needs money, a big radio station or about 20 small ones costing about $50,000 each; some fair, unbiased press coverage, etc.

D. TOWARD CIVIL WAR

Several events could trigger a civil war in South Africa:

1. If De Klerk does a bi-lateral deal between the ANC and the NP or tries to hand over power to the ANC/SACP to the exclusion of the Zulus, the Tswanas, or the Conservative Afrikaans;
2. If the National Party or interim government tries to confiscate White firearms;
3. If the National Party government unleashes the SADF or the South African Police against conservative Afrikaans.

The National Party seems to be moving to implement all three at this writing.

If a civil war breaks out, it will involve on one side the ANC, SACP, the Transkei army, and perhaps the National Party, the Democratic Party and some liberal elements of the SADF and the South African Police. On the other side would be Inkatha and the Zulus, the Conservative Party and hundreds of thousands of Afrikaans, the Tswanas, and moderate Blacks from a number of tribes.

There are 650,000 Whites on the Citizen Force call-up list - most of whom have had at least two years of SADF military service. It is estimated that between 70 and 100,000 of these are already armed, trained and organized by the conservative right to fight against the ANC if civil war should eventuate. It should be remembered that the people who invented guerilla warfare were the Boers (Afrikaans). If the Afrikaans teamed up with the Zulus' 500,000 Impis, life could become very hectic for the communists.

[ED. NOTE: About 25 years ago the communists almost came to power in Indonesia under General Sukarno. General Suharto, a staunch anti-communist and patriot, led a counter-revolution against the communists and when the dust settled almost a million communists were dead and the revolution was over once and for all. Could this happen to the ANC/SACP cadres if a civil war broke out in South Africa and the Afrikaans and Zulus teamed up to put down the communists?]

The wild card in such a civil war scenario is, would George Bush send in a UN/NWO army to support the ANC/SACP/NP alliance and put down the Boers and Zulus? That is the bloodiest scenario of all, but not totally outside the realm of possibility.

E. TOWARD A ZULU, AFRIKAANER, TSWANA ALLIANCE

An alliance of moderate anti-communists may be coming together at this writing. Dr. Andries Treurnicht, head of the Conservative Party, Chief Minister Mangosuthu Buthelezi, head of the Zulus, and President Lukas Mangope, the leader of Bophuthotswana at this writing have been having informal talks about an alliance of moderate, anti-communist Whites and Blacks. There are 7 million Zulus, 3 million Afrikaaners and 4.8 million Tswanas in South Africa and the independent state of Bophuthotswana - totaling almost 15 million people. Other moderate groups such as FIDA (Federal Independent Democratic Alliance) have also shown interest in being in the alliance.

An official linkup between the Zulus, Conservative Party, and Tswanas could happen shortly after the collapse of Codesa. Mangope will not renounce the independence of Bophuthotswana to come back into the New South Africa. So he seems open to cutting a deal with the Conservative Party and the Zulus. In the past, the Conservative Party was perceived as not having a real policy beyond retention of apartheid.

Now the Conservative Party is getting behind the above-mentioned alliance and the concept of a confederation or commonwealth of 12-13 independent states (i.e., a voluntary partitioning of the old RSA). The Conservatives seem to be coming up with a viable alternative to the National Party handover of power to an ANC government in a single unitary state. The challenge for Dr. Treurnicht now will be to turn the Conservative Party away from racism and to unite the Blacks and Whites on issues - and not allow them to be divided on color. The reality of the present situation (as this writer sees it) is that the conservative Whites, the Zulus and the Tswanas need each other in order to survive.

F. A POSSIBLE SOLUTION: A COMMONWEALTH OF SOUTH AFRICAN STATES (THE THIRD OPTION)

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, which taken at the flood leads on to fortune; omitted, all of the voyage of their lives is bound in shallows and misery."

There does seem to be emerging in South Africa another option - a third alternative as opposed to the handing of power over to the ANC/SACP in a unitary state (the US State Department/International Community plan) or civil war (the bloodletting option). The three options are as follows:

1. A POWER-SHARING ALLIANCE BETWEEN ANC/SACP/NP IN WHICH A MULTI-RACIAL SINGLE UNITARY STATE WOULD EMERGE. Ultimately (and probably from the onset) this would be dominated by the ANC/SACP Marxist-Leninist alliance, with liberal or non-Marxist elements excluded or purged via Phase II of the two phase revolution, which would be completed by 1994 or '95. South Africans of all races would then live under a Marxist-Leninist dictatorship ala Zimbabwe, Namibia, Cuba, China or Russia. This is an unthinkable option for freedom loving South Africans of all races.

2. CIVIL WAR - THE BLOODLETTING OPTION. Conservative Afrikaaners and other Whites, Zulus, and Tswanas will not live under ANC/SACP/Xhosa rule. The majority of White South Africans (including many National Party members) no longer support the weak, appeasement-oriented, State Department-directed, New World Order aligned National Party. But until now, their only alternative to option one was a civil war in which millions on all sides would die and the UN/NWO/International Community would very possibly become embroiled in. Now there is a third option:

3. A COMMONWEALTH OF INDEPENDENT SOUTH AFRICAN STATES. A voluntary partitioning of the "Old South Africa" into 12 or 13 separate, independent states or republics, each with: A) Its own constitution; B) Its own system of taxation; C) Its own defense force and police; and D) The freedom to secede from the commonwealth or confederation should they wish to do so.

The borders for these 12 or 13 republics or states would be negotiated between the various groups based upon languages, historic or traditional areas, and where the majority of that group presently lives. Anyone could live in whichever of the independent states or republics they chose, they could continue to own their own property in that state, or they would be free to move to another state. But they would be bound to live under the constitution and laws of the state in which they resided.

Some of the states might choose a free market, anti-communist, Biblically-based model of government; some might choose a socialist, Marxist, collectivist form of government; and some might choose a mixed economy. Some of the states would prosper because of the system chosen, and some would not.

From 1900 to 1988, the percentage of Whites or Europeans in South Africa has remained more or less constant at 19-20% (plus/minus). So, in the negotiations for borders, the republic for Whites (who have a population of 4.9 million) would probably end up at 15-25% of the existing area of the RSA (i.e., the White Republic would shrink dramatically in size). The Zulu Republic, with a population of 7 million, would probably occupy all of Natal and more, in an expanded land area beyond present day QuaZulu. The Xhosa Republic, with a population close to 6 million, would occupy territory covering present day Transkei and Ciskei and more.

The Tswana Republic, with a population of about 5 million, would cover present day Bophuthotswana and more. The Colored Republic, with a population of almost 3 million, would be located in a large area of the Western Cape. And so it would go for the North Sotho (population 2.6 million); the South Sotho (population 3.2 million); the Shangaan (population 1 million); the Swazi (population 1.5 million); the Asians (or Indians) (population 1 million), etc. Each of these groups would probably eventuate, after negotiations, with a substantially larger area than they now dominate linguistically or culturally, and most would have populations larger than several dozen member states of the United Nations.

A number of population, linguistic, and cultural studies have been done over the years and potential partition maps drawn. In recent months some very sophisticated and comprehensive computer studies have been done based on where the population groups presently live, the language and cultural make-up of various areas, historical preferences, etc. [ED. NOTE: This writer met extensively with some of these planners and was very impressed with the thoroughness; foresightedness and creativity of their analysis.]

Very comprehensive studies have been done (including polling) looking at 40 separate norms or considerations for voluntary partitioning of the land. The most important considerations which emerged with respect to the size and configuration of the land were: (1) The people one dwells with (homogeneity of population and culture) - 30%; (2) The resources possessed in that land - 17%; (3) The strength of the economy in that land - 6%; (4) The self-defensibility of that land - 6%; (5) The freedom to negotiate for themselves; to self-determination; to control their own destiny within the land - 36%.

Several maps are included in this report which could be a starting point for negotiations.

The commonwealth (or confederation) as it is now being discussed would not have a central government; per se; it would not have a central military; it would not have a central taxation system. Each republic or state would have its own constitution (some would be free enterprise oriented, some would be socialist). Each would have its own defense force and police - but each would then contribute units to a NATO-type defense structure acceptable to all the members of the confederation. The right to secede from the confederation or commonwealth would be very important. Countries like Switzerland and Canada have such a provision in their constitutions and find it to be the one provision that makes cooperation possible.

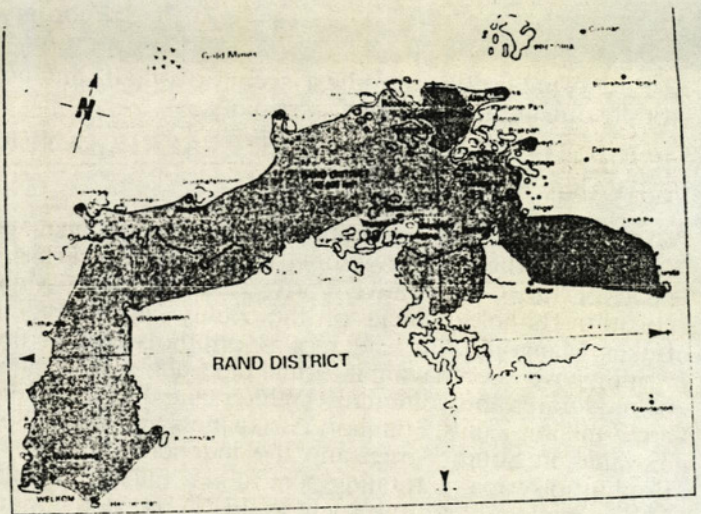

A limited commonwealth central government might handle certain functions for all 13 members such as: 1) Electricity or power (i.e., at present ESCOM provides electricity to the whole country on a national grid); 2) Water; 3) National Transport (roads, railways and air transport across the commonwealth); and 4) any other powers delegated to it by the 13 states on a consensus basis. Postal services and telecommunications would probably be privatized. It is envisioned that all of the member states of the confederation would agree to the following:

1. So-called "apartheid" legislation would not be reintroduced by any state;

2. All states would jointly accept responsibility for South Africa's international debt obligations; [ED. NOTE: The ANC has said it will not honor international debts.]

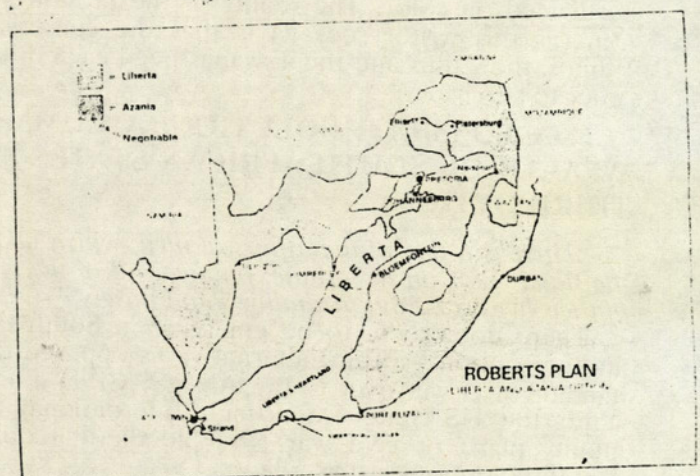

3. The Commonwealth might start out with one vote in the United Nations but would eventually follow the example of the Commonwealth of Independent States (Old Soviet Union) with each republic having separate representatives.

One of the knotty problems of this commonwealth or confederation option is the Rand District, which makes up an area in the present PWV area (South Africa's industrial heartland), about the size of Lebanon. Included in this Rand District are South Africa's major industrial and mining areas with large numbers of workers from other locations. This Rand District (see maps) is a very valuable, highly industrialized sector which could emerge as a multi-cultural free association area which could be governed by a board of governors selected from the 12 or 13 independent republics or from the population groups living in the Rand District by proportion to their numbers.

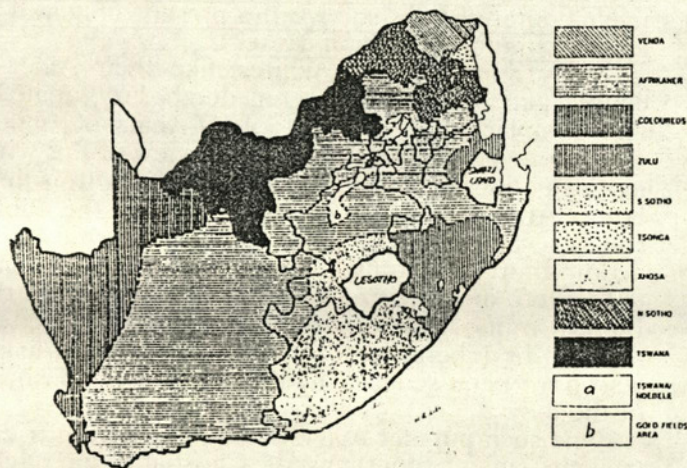

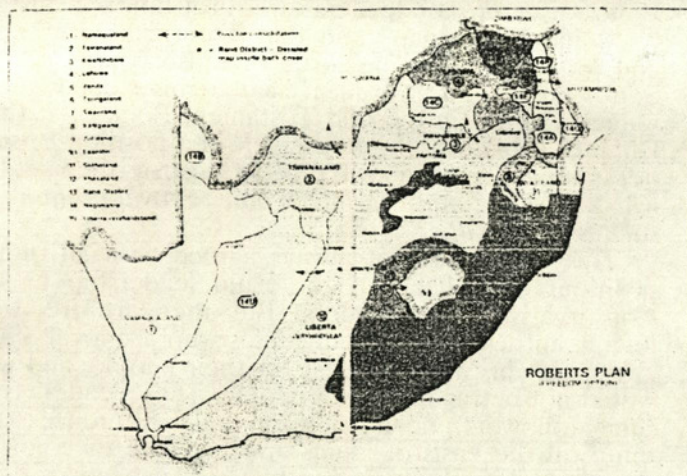

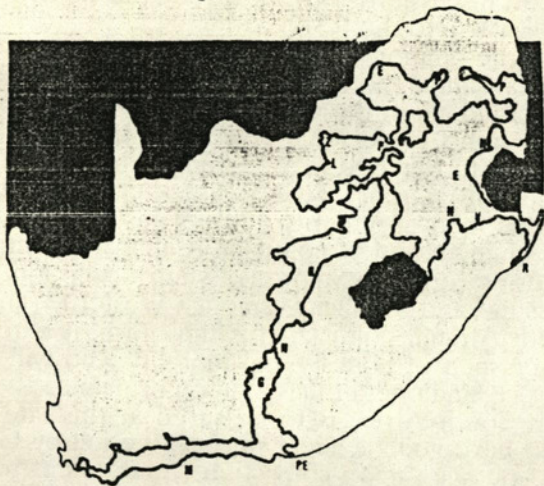

The Rand District could be a highly productive international entity which would include within its borders Jan Smuts International Airport and Johannesburg, but not predominately White cities such as Pretoria. Johannesburg would be the administrative center of the Rand District. People would freely choose to live and work in the Rand District, or to work there and commute to the White Republic or one of the Black Republics.

The White Republic, called Liberta in the Roberts Plan (see map) and Afrikaanerland as the working name in the Conservative Party plan, would incorporate about 60% of South Africa's Whites (now living in the old RSA) as presently envisioned (see maps). The Whites already constitute a majority in this area. It is significant that only about 8% of the total number of Black, Brown, and Asiatic people in the RSA live in Liberta (as drawn on the Roberts map).

The Conservative Party map, and others drawn, includes a corridor south of Swaziland and a section of the Indian Ocean coast near Natal which is heavily inhabited by Afrikaaners. It is envisioned that Richards Bay, the RSA's most important seaport, would be shared by the Zulu and White Republics, while the Zulu Republic would control the port of Durban, the Xhosa Republic would control the ports of East London and Port Elizabeth, and the Colored Republic would control the port of Cape Town or perhaps share it with the White Republic.

[ED. NOTE: An excellent book has been published which analyzes the concept of a commonwealth or confederation plan and offers an excellent starting place for discussions or debate which might ultimately lead to negotiations for voluntary partition into a commonwealth of independent states. The book, African White Tribes by Will Roberts is available by writing to Old World Publishing, P O Box 13530, Clubview 0014, South Africa. Cost in rands: R110.55 including postage; cost in dollars about $40 airmail. This book is highly recommended for thinking people interested in an alternative to options one and two above.]

ADVANTAGES OF VOLUNTARY PARTITION INTO A COMMONWEALTH OF INDEPENDENT SOUTH AFRICAN STATES

1. It solves the problem of the enormous cultural differences between the 13 (or so) tribal/linguistic groups in South Africa - including the White Tribe. The American-style blender approach will not work in South Africa; it has never worked in Black Africa anywhere; and it did not work in the "Old Soviet Union" or Eastern Europe, as the recent civil war in Yugoslavia has so starkly attested to. The "blender solution" for South Africa will lead to tribal or civil war.

2. The confederation or commonwealth concept will solve the problem the British created early in this century when they arbitrarily drew borders across tribal/linguistic/cultural lines.

3. This option does not involve changing land ownership but simply changing governmental authority.

4. In spite of New World Order plans to the contrary, the world is moving inexorably toward more nationalism and the breakup of illogical power groupings (i.e., the breakup of the Old Soviet Union, of Yugoslavia, etc.) The concept of a Commonwealth of Independent South African States now has a major precedent and has become more acceptable because of the recent breakup of the Soviet Union.

5. Like the Commonwealth of Independent States, (the Old Soviet Union), logically all 13 of the new South African republics should get a seat in the United Nations.

6. Up until this point, corporate money powers in South Africa; loyal patriotic members (or retired members) of the SADF and the South African Police; mainstream White South Africans; frustrated National Party members; and moderate Blacks across South Africa have had no option or alternative except to go along with the US State Department/international community-dictated handover of power by the National Party to the ANC/SACP alliance. Now there is an option or alternative, and this option could split the National Party and help precipitate the collapse of Codesa.

[ED. NOTE: And this is why the National Party, the ANC/SACP, and the US State Department will push for an interim government and handover of power as soon as possible. Events are moving very rapidly in South Africa today and are indeed very volatile and fluid.]

7. The National Party has long since lost the initiative to the ANC/SACP alliance and to the International Community. The Conservative Party, in alliance with the Zulus and the Tswanas, at this writing seem to be seizing the initiative (perhaps for the first time) with a serious alternative to surrender or civil war.

8. The confederation or commonwealth concept, in the opinion of this writer, offers the only really viable alternative to civil war. And if the National Party tries to force through ("slam dunk" as the Americans would say) the interim government and handover of power to the ANC, and civil war does erupt, the commonwealth option may still eventuate after the civil war.

ANTICIPATED OPPOSITION TO THE COMMONWEALTH OPTION

1. The US State Department, the International Community, and the New World Order will bitterly oppose, connive, and manipulate against this Third Option because it will dilute and diminish their power over the New South Africa and the region, and will make it far harder to control South Africa's mineral wealth - their ultimate goal! A civil war (which they could intervene in via a UN police action) would be a more attractive option to this group than the Third Option. Obviously, they will do everything in their power to impose the First Option.

[ED. NOTE: Therefore, it will be imperative to keep the US State Department, the International Community and the New World Order/UN crowd out of the Third Option negotiations. They will manipulate, subvert, and destroy the process if at all possible.]

2. Opposition can of course be expected from the ANC/SACP alliance which wants total power in South Africa; from the National Party which will probably disintegrate and lose all relevancy if the Third Option is adopted; and from the liberal South African and international media, church groups, academics, etc., who support the First Option and many of whom may really believe that power sharing between the ANC, SACP and NP will work.

3. Initially, the Third Option will be opposed by many conservative Whites who will fear what they have to lose in a downsized White Republic. But they will not lose their property, or their freedom of movement or their right to self-determination under the Third Option whereas if the First or Second Options carry the day, they may lose everything, including their lives as well.

CONCLUSION

"If to please the people, we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterward defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which wise and honest men can repair. The event is in the hand of God." George Washington at the Constitutional Convention, 1787

It is late in the history of South Africa, very late indeed, approaching the eleventh hour! But in the opinion of this writer, it is not too late! Necessity is the mother of invention and creative solutions are often born out of crisis. South Africa's crisis is a Marxist-Leninist revolution backed and financed by the communist powers, the International Community, the New World Order and the US government and its State Department. Should this revolutionary alliance come to power, South Africans of all colors will descend into a communist hell and bloodbath of enormous proportions, and their Christian heritage may be irretrievably lost.

In recent years, South Africa, like most of the West, has been devoid of strong leadership. Many of the leading politicians of the day have been weak, compromising, liberal, corrupt, short-sighted, proud, arrogant, and easily seduced by evil powers both from within and out of South Africa. A few have even been traitors or moles. However, times of crisis often give birth to strong leaders.

In the present situation in South Africa, this writer sees three strong leaders emerging: Dr. Andries Treurnicht, Chief Minister Mangosuthu Buthelezi, and President Lukas Mangope. (Others will emerge as well.) This writer personally knows and has had serious private discussions with all three (the first two on his January trip to the RSA).

In the opinion of this writer, all three of these men are statesmen (not just politicians) who are far more concerned about the welfare of their people than their own careers or personal power. All three are (in stark contrast to the ANC/SACP and even some of the NP leadership) strong, godly, Bible-believing Christians, humble men of integrity and not just expediency. In a day when an honest politician is almost a contradiction in terms (or an oxymoron), when deception, double-crossing and duplicity among Western (and many South African politicians) is the norm, it is refreshing to see men of honesty and morality who will do what they say and operate based upon principle.

If South Africa is to be saved at this late hour, it must have godly leaders who can be led by God, men of courage and conviction, and men who are mavericks. This writer believes that the God of the Bible raises up key leaders at critical hours in history to "stand in the gap" and that Treurnicht, Buthelezi and Mangope could be three of those types today in South Africa. As Mordecai said to his stepdaughter, Queen Esther (in the Old Testament Book of Esther, Chapter 4:14), who found herself in a position to save her people from an evil plot to destroy them, "And who knows but that you have come to royal position for such a time as this?"

This writer has not always agreed with all of the positions or policies of the Zulu leadership or the Conservative Party leaders. But they are freedom-loving, anti-communist individuals who are loyal South Africans, who want the best for their people, and who would not betray their own people. These leaders (and their followers) need to bury their differences and unite on the basis of issues and not race or color. In the view of this writer, South Africa can not survive, nor can conservative/moderate Whites, nor conservative/moderate/Blacks survive the present upheaval unless they unite in common cause.

Many South African Whites, like their American counterparts, have become fat, dumb, lazy, apathetic, and complacent as a result of 47 years of uninterrupted prosperity since 1945. In the view of this writer, moral, political, and spiritual decline is setting in, in South Africa (as it has in America), and the Biblical roots of South Africa have become blurred as the major church denominations have been liberalized, politicized, mediocrized, and moved away from their Biblical roots, while others have been radicalized and seduced by Liberation Theology, or by church leaders who have been seduced by the political establishment of the day.

One such popular religious leader has even tried to convince many thousands of Christians that Nelson and Winnie Mandela are actually strong, born-again Christians, and that unprecedented prosperity lies on the immediate horizon for South African Christians. As the Bible says, "Woe unto false prophets who lead God's people astray."

As in America today, many South Africans refuse to believe that their leaders would really betray them, that they could really lose their freedom, or that their prosperous, materialistic way of life could be about to come to an end. Hopefully South Africans will not be like the people of France who only reacted to the Nazi threat after they were occupied. The Resistance was courageous and eventually victorious - at a great price, but prevention would have been better.

South Africa is facing a spiritual as well as a political battle. If it is to be won, it must be won on both levels. South Africa needs a massive Christian revival and turning back to the faith of its fathers. South Africans need to pray for their leaders as never before (especially the three moderate/conservative leaders mentioned above) and other patriotic God-fearing leaders who will emerge in the growing crisis. As this writer contemplates the atheistic anti-Christian communists who may be about to take power in South Africa, he is reminded of Ephesians 6:10-12, "Finally be strong in the Lord and in his mighty power. Put on the full armor of God so that you can take your stand against the devil's schemes. For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms."

And South Africans need to get involved politically while there is still time. The potential for an alliance between the Afrikaaners, the Zulus, the Tswanas, and other Black, White, Colored and Indian moderates is positive and needs to be pursued immediately. The potential for a Third Option, a voluntary partition into a Confederation of Independent African States is, in the opinion of this writer, the only viable option peace and freedom-loving South Africans have left, and should be pursued aggressively. As Edmund Burke once said: "All that is necessary for evil to triumph is that good men do nothing." Well, it appears to this American friend of South Africa that too many good South Africans have been doing too little for too long, and their freedom is now in grave danger.

As Winston Churchill said in 1938 as he was trying to wake up the sleeping, apathetic British people: "The whole equilibrium has been deranged, and the terrible words have been pronounced against the Western democracies. 'Thou are weighed in the balance and found wanting.' And do not suppose that this is the end. This is only the beginning of the reckoning. This is only the first foretaste of a bitter cup which will be proffered to us year by year unless by a supreme recovery of moral health and martial vigor we arise again and take our stand as in the olden times."

And finally, 2 Chronicles 7:14 says: "If my people, who are called by my name will humble themselves and pray, and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven, forgive their sins and heal their land."

As George Washington said: "The event is in the hand of God."

3. There are some excellent organizations and publications in South Africa which this writer knows of which are trying to wake up and alert the South African people as to their imminent danger, and mobilize them in the upheaval which is coming. As always in such battles, they are underfunded and undermanned while the ANC/SACP get their millions from abroad. South Africans, Americans, and others are encouraged to subscribe to their publications, support them financially, help them to organize best meetings in your area and to pray for them as well:

Made up of Christians with an SADF (military background), Frontline Fellowship has organized several hundred small activist groups around South Africa (called Salt Shaker groups) who are putting their faith into action to try to save South Africa from the Marxist-Leninist revolution. Headed by Peter Hammond (who also heads United Christian Action - a coalition of 14 Bible believing Christian groups representing 5 million South Africans of all races). FINAL THOUGHT: In light of the above analysis, Isaiah 40:15, 17, 21-24 should be read and pondered: "Surely the nations are like a drop in a bucket; they are regarded as dust on the scales; He weighs the islands as though they were fine dust. Before Him all the nations are as nothing; they are regarded by Him as worthless and less than nothing. Do you not know? Have you not heard? Has it not been told you from the beginning? Have you not understood since the earth was founded? He sits enthroned above the circle of the earth, and its people are like grasshoppers. He stretches out the heavens like a canopy, and spreads them out like a tent to live in. He brings princes to naught and reduces the rulers of this world to nothing. No sooner are they planted, no sooner are they sown, no sooner do they take root in the ground, than he blows on them and they wither, and a whirlwind sweeps them away like chaff." When considering leaders like Bush, Yeltsin, or De Klerk, or nations such as America, Russia, or South Africa, it is helpful to keep these verses in mind! That is the bottom line!
