

STATEMENT

Skotaville, as indigenous publishers, aim at pioneering contemporary books on theological themes confronting racist/capitalist South Africa, as part of its human rights objective and one of the national aspirations of the dispossessed majority, who are now not only demanding to be treated decently as human beings, but are also unhesitatingly insisting on determining the destiny of this great/tragic country like never before. Lately even the SABC has become interested in monitoring the impact of Liberation Theology in its broadest sense on strife-torn South Africa.

SKOTAVILLE EDUCATIONAL DIVISION

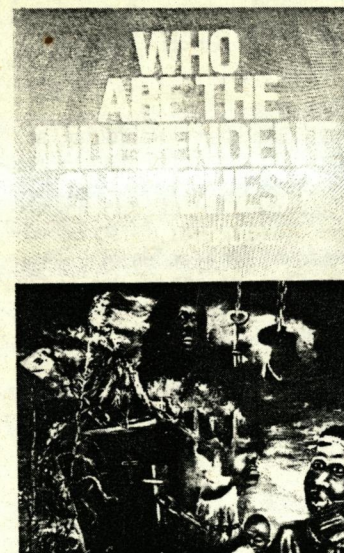

It is Skotaville's contention that the crisis that has arisen in our children's education underlines the need for Skotaville as our own publishing house to stand ready to publish our own material for the alternative education that is being planned.

On the other hand, the publishing of school books and other materials should be seen as a logical consequence of the company's growth, dynamism and position within the community.

Identification of Publishing Needs

On a long term basis the division hopes that it will finally be producing published material falling under the following edition series or categories: Univ; College; Hospital etc.

PANGS OF GROWTH

Edited by

G.M. Setiloane & I.H.M. Peden

Africa, south of the Limpopo River, pulsates with energy; it also suffers the pangs of growth as it groans with eager longing for its destiny where peace and justice will prevail. It is a bitter-sweet context for all concerned, not least the people of God. In this context the Christian Church will either fade or flourish. It is the concern of this book and of all its contributors that the Church of Jesus Christ grows healthily as Southern Africa moves towards the twenty-first century.
