Editorial Notices

THIS quarter brings to a close a year which to many has been comparatively uneventful, for the little world of school politics pursues its regular course with but passing interference from the great outside upheaval. Little of note has occurred to disturb the routine of daily work and play, and this is not without its value, for thus a very steady and consistent year's progress has been quietly maintained, and we now look expectantly for some results worthy of the effort which work has demanded. These we confidently await, and till they appear, the long-looked-for relaxation of a Xmas holiday will provide sufficient diversion to most.

To those who go from us this month to play their part in other spheres of life, we extend all good wishes for success. To them we look for the further carrying-on of the School's traditions, and we trust they will retain memories of days spent at Kingswood which will keep very real their interest, and worthily prove the influence of their school-days. Old Kingswoodians are to be met all over this country now, as well as in other climes, and those who now go out to join that band will know that upon them as well as upon present scholars, rests the name and fame of their "alma mater." May they prove worthy of it !

In this issue we appeal to boys leaving to join the Old Boys' Club before they depart from Grahamstown, for later on other interests may intervene to prevent their taking the step. Mr. Matterson is the Secretary, and gladly receives the names of any who desire to join. After the war, we are anticipating a Foundation Day on a larger scale than ever before, so that all should keep this in view, and watch for notices in the Magazine preparatory to the event. Old Boys who are members of the Club will probably be notified in good time by the Hon. Secretary.

In this number we print more notes from letters of Old Boys, some of which have been sent direct to the Editor, others kindly given by friends or relatives of those concerned. We again emphasise that any such will be welcomed by the Editor, and if desired, will always be returned. Will all Old Boys or friends concerned in their welfare reciprocate in this way the cordial interest which is maintained at Kingswood in those who have left its portals in past years?

In conclusion, to all who leave us finally, and to all who are to come back again, we extend cordial wishes for a Xmas-tide of real good cheer and happiness, and this, we trust, will carry its message even to the straining trenches of Europe's battle-fields.

School Notes

THE term ends on Wednesday, Dec. 13th, and School re-opens on January 24th, 1917.

* * * *

At the close of the Football Season, Caps were awarded to Turner and Dold (three-quarters) for all-round sound play. The forwards were rather below standard, though Dyke and Worringham were close candidates for the honour.

* * * *

In last issue's report of Football, the critique of J. Liebman was inadvertently omitted. We insert it here: Plays a sound game in the loose, and keeps well on the ball; clumsy in possession; can do more in the scrum, and put much more dash into his play ; improved greatly during the season.

* * * *

The following were awarded their Footer Colours for 1916 :—A. Worringham, A. Lewis, M. Brown, A. Alger, L. Gray, W. Staples, J. Liebman, A. Maneschewitz, D. Clementz.

* * * *

We extend hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Matterson on the birth of a daughter.

O.K. News

MARRIAGES

On Oct. 28th, at St. Cuthbert's Church, Port Elizabeth, Wilson Stephenson, O.K., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stephenson of Willowfontein, Kroomie, to Yuma Scott-Parkin, youngest daughter of Mrs. Scott-Parkin, "Willowby," Port Elizabeth.

On July 26th, 1916, Walter Hamilton Curnick to Laura Elliot.

W. John is in Bristol as Superintendent of one of the munition factories.

H. John is in Flanders with the Veterinary Corps attached to the Royal Field Artillery.

W. Nicol, Lieut. in the 2nd Rhodesians was wounded in German East and invalided to Capetown with fever. He has, however, recovered and returned to the front.

J. P. Kent volunteered for active service, but was rejected on the score of eyesight. He has therefore filled a vacancy which released a friend for service in Europe, and is now doing work as an Incorporated Accountant in the office of Messrs. Douglas & Low, Johannesburg. Gilbert Tucker is in the same office.

D. Purdon has been severely wounded in Flanders in the groin, the latest reports from hospital have not been satisfactory.

Hallam Baker has been awarded the Military Medal ; he is with a Rhodesian platoon that has been cut up badly, and he has also received his lance-corporal stripe.

Edwy Baker was invalided from France to the Richmond Hospital, but has been discharged and expects to return to France shortly.

Capt. R. Lance Impey, R.A.M.C., has been recommended for the Military Cross. He was working immediately behind the firing line when last he wrote.

A. G. Harris was wounded in the hand at Trek-kopjes and is now unfit for military service.

H. A. Morgan has been wounded in Flanders.

L. W. Pescod is on service in German East.

Hyde Guest has been given a captaincy in the Nyassaland Expeditionary Force.

R. Guest has been invalided to the hospital at Capetown.

J. G. Gush has had repeated attacks of fever and was sent to the base hospital at Durban.

A. C. Wood, H. S. Wood, A. C. Ross, W. Kingwill and D. A. Dold have been drafted from Sandhurst to different regiments.

H. and S. Clarke, with the 8th S. A. Horse in German East have been having a rough time "on trek" in the interior. The latter was recently operated on for appendicitis, but is now progressing satisfactorily, and both have had malaria.

J. C. Rider has received a Commission in Lovat's Scouts (France).

G. D. Duncan has passed the Transvaal Law Certificate Examination.

Horace and Douglas Duncan are in England with Officers Training Corps.

Fred Halse has joined the forces in England, and we understand has recently been married, but we have no details.

N. G. Gane on leaving Sandhurst was gazetted to the Royal Scots Fusiliers and after three weeks further training with the Depot Battalion left for France where he finally joined the First Battalion of the Regiment. He has been in some of the recent "pushes."

L. Gane has taken advantage of the permission granted at last to Civil Servants to enlist and joined one of the mounted regiments for service in German East Africa. There being little probability of the mounted men being sent forward he has transferred to the 5th South African Infantry and left to join the Nyassaland Contingent.

We have recently been allowed to see a number of letters which speak in the highest terms of the gallantry and devotion of Gordon Mallett who as reported in our last number was killed at Delville Wood.

He was N.C.O. in charge of Lewis Guns at the time stationed in the wood. He had been instrumental in rescuing a number of wounded men and in response to a call went out again to bring in a Sergeant-Major of the Territorial Regiment who had been wounded. It was impossible to get the wounded men away owing to the heavy shelling in progress and Gordon tended the men for over 16 hours giving up all the water he had, and, adds one account, "you know what a sacrifice that is." Ultimately his section was reduced to himself and two men, and he was shortly afterwards killed by a shell. One writer says that his influence upon the men was remarkable. Another "I never saw anything so inspiring as his cool courage and devotion to the wounded while under a tremendous bombardment." His Company commander says "It was largely due to his efforts that we kept the enemy out of that part of the wood as long as we did."

Fragments from the Fronts

A. WOOD writes from Sandhurst, April 30th, 1916.

"The College stands in its own grounds, and the buildings are surrounded by woods, into which we are forbidden to enter. The lake looks fine and has an island in the centre, on which a number of ducks live. Boats and canoes can be hired at 6d. per hour, and on half-holidays the scene is lovely, with the sun shining, and the fellows all in whites and blazers. The colours are red and white, and we wear a little pill-box cap of the same colours. Each company has its own block of buildings, though these are all connected with one another. There is an old and a new building, each holding six companies and three stories high, with towers, pillared entrances, and old cannon in front, which the fellows dragged into the lake some time ago. . . . Our rifles are of the new pattern, and look rather funny as the barrels are covered with wood to prevent them burning our hands after rapid fire. . . . In front of the buildings is a large gravel space on which we drill regularly, and beyond these are the fields—3 rugby, 3 soccer, and hockey, etc. . . . The drill here is frightfully stiff and the discipline more so. I used to think K.C.C.C. a smart corps, but I don't think so now. I never saw such drilling in all my life: the 500 seniors drill like one man. . . . Did you hear that story about one of the training camps? It was near a cemetery and on one of the graves was a stone with an inscription to say that a colonel lay beneath. The man had been dead about 600 years. One of the soldiers wrote underneath it: "Get up! your king and country need you." He got six months' hard for his wit later on.

May 7th, 1916.—"I'm still stiff from trench-digging. We went out on Wednesday and dug like anything. We have to construct trenches modelled on those of France with traverses, dug-outs, shell and splinter-proof roofs, islands, connections, listening-holes, barbed wire entanglements, and any amount of other things."

May 31st, 1916.—"We've got fellows here from all over the world at the R.M.C. now—English fellows from India, China, Mexico, S. Africa, Italy, Egypt, Scotland, Ireland and New Zealand, besides other places too numerous to mention. We have now begun instruction on the Lewis quick-firer automatic rifle which fires 700 rounds in a minute. It is painted khaki, weighs 25lbs. and is about  $4\frac{1}{2}$  feet long. Its an awfully useful little weapon, and is equal to 100 men with rifles."

July 2nd, 1916.—"On Wednesday we spent the morning on the moors and were placed out in sentry groups and patrols when news arrived that the King was coming, which slightly excited us all, as you may imagine! However, he did not get as far as my picket, which was a disappointment, as the next picket to us was almost up against him. Their sentry saw him coming, and challenged, to which the King replied "Friend," then came up and talked to the Sergeant in charge, asking what we were doing, what school he had come from, his age, etc., which was jolly decent of him. He was mounted and had about 30 Staff Officers with him, and a guard of Household Cavalry. This morning we fell in and then took up our positions right along the front of the old building. The King's motor, followed by several others, drove up from Aldershot punctually at 10.30. As the King walked up the drive he was met by General Rolt, and the other R.M.C. officers. We stood to attention while the band played the National Anthem; then we were inspected by the King, Queen, General French and a number of naval and military officers. The King looks very old and tired, but fine in his plain khaki uniform. He is a short man, even compared with me, and I am only 5ft. 10ins. General French looks awfully decent ("hevery hessence a soldier," as Sergt. Giles says !), but does not look old and fagged out as they say he did after coming back from France. The Queen took everybody by storm. She is tall, with fair hair, and pink cheeks, and is very pretty. After the March Past, the King addressed us from the grand entrance steps, round which the cadets had formed three sides of a square. Then we marched to the Chapel. You should have heard the singing, as the Adjutant had threatened to have anybody who didn't sing put on an extra singing parade afterwards. Then we formed a double line down the main drive, down which the Royal car drove, while we cheered and the King and Queen bowed and smiled. I heard afterwards of two or three hot disputes which nearly ended in a fight, because some cadet had claimed a Royal smile, which another thought had been bestowed on him."

September 7th, 1916.—"The sports were highly successful—at any rate from a S. African point of view. Stew got the 100 yds., and something else, Doug the  $\frac{1}{4}$  mile, Cogill the  $\frac{1}{2}$  mile, and I third in the 220 yds., besides which we all got a good many points for our respective companies K.H.E. which were the only ones in the running at all. Stew. Doug and I each got an awfully nice silver cigarette case, and Stew a wrist-watch, and, I think, a razor besides, which wasn't so bad."

H. S. WOOD writes :

May 2nd, 1916.—Sandhurst is really a fine College. Between the old and new buildings there is a distance of nearly  $\frac{3}{4}$  miles and so we all have bikes. We have been on the lake already in a punt and it is fine. On Sunday we went to Church Parade in the College chapel : it was a jolly decent service and the church is really the best for its size I have been into. The walls are marble inside, of the very best, and the names and memorials to the fallen (since George IV) who have been at Sandhurst are put up on the slabs ; while above the arch where the minister stands there is the motto " Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori." The food here is splendid, and everyone enjoys it. One can get 7-14 days' restriction to bounds for a little offence like dirty boots or rifle, or being late on parade, so we have to be careful. We thought we knew how to drill at K.C. Well the staff sergeants drill us like mad, and we feel we know nothing at all : they are so strict about little things.

June 25.—Last Sat. I was in the cricket team for the R.M.C. against Harrow. The R.M.C. got beaten by 231 to 130. There is not much interest taken in cricket here.

July 4th.—During last week the King came down on a flying visit and saw the R.M.C. at their work—entrenching outposts, etc., and seemed very pleased with what he saw. On Sunday he came from Aldershot with Queen Mary, Lord French and a crowd of officers, navy and army. It was a very good review. Our march past the saluting base was particularly good. The King said it was the best review he had seen, and so said Lord French and our Commandant Brigadier General ; so the battalion feels proud of itself as the best drilled battalion in the British army !

July 20th.—This week we have started riding—it has all come back to me again, although I've not ridden for some time. One of the exercises is to trot without stirrups in the paddock for 10 minutes at a time. Some of the horses are very fresh and others awfully lazy—but all are well trained.

July 23rd.—The R.M.C. sports are coming off on the 9th or 10th, so we are all busy training for the different events. It's an awfully funny thing, but Dold, Alan, Ross and I are all the fastest runners in our respective companies—we were all at K.C. and all South Africans.

Sept. 5th.—Major Nelson, commanding G. Co., said to me, "Your little school is getting quite famous over here for its sport," and I said "Of course, Yes!" . . . Every one knows our K.C. blazers and I think would rather have us as allies than as enemies.

Our riding is getting on finely—so far our highest jump is 3ft. 6 inch. without reins or stirrups, so they teach you to grip like fury with your knees.

October 1st, 1916.

We have very nearly finished our time here now and I think by the time this letter reaches you we shall have done so ; that is providing we pass the exams. we're doing at present. Football started about a month ago, and we have had some awfully good games, although the English chaps don't seem to be able to play like South Africans. There are 21 South Africans and 4 New Zealanders altogether here, and with a team of 13 South Africans and 2 New Zealanders we beat the rest of the R.M.C. in two games—first by 22—3 and second by 19—0, so they think we are rather good. Out of the thirteen South Africans, five were from Kingswood and two from St. Andrew's, so Grahamstown was practically half the team. All from Kingswood are playing better than they used, and Douglas Dold has rather astonished everyone with his old game, you will remember, of the "dummy" and very good kicking,

In the Athletic Sports which were held about six weeks ago, K.C. did rather well ; there were four from K.C. in the 100 yards final out of six runners, and Dold also won the 440 yards in 52 seconds. I was third in this, but "some" distance separated the first and third, as you will remember I couldn't be expected to do the 440 in 52 secs.

C. Ross is the only one who has not got promotion and that is through bad luck, not because he isn't fit for it. We were awfully glad to see in the magazine that Grey Institute was beaten this year in Rugby, as we didn't manage to do it last year much to our disappointment.

D. PURDON writes from Bordon Camp : May 5th, 1916.

"Jove ! you should be in England now. The weather is absolutely perfect ; in fact it was so warm the other day, that in digging our "sniper's lair " my "half-section " and I worked for hours minus our shirts. All the trees are wonderfully green. fields full of flowers, with violets all along the banks of the roads, while the gorse is one flaming mass of yellow. Cuckoos are knocking about all over the place, and last night I heard a nightingale. What do you think of that ? Have been doing a fearful lot of shooting lately from all kinds of holes and corners and positions and angles. I have done fairly well so far, am fourth in the battalion myself, and our company snipers, taking the average, are well ahead of any other company. I wish you could see us after a route march or after coming back from sniping now-a-days. Somebody in the bungalow has pinched a length of hose-pipe from somewhere, and we fasten it to one of the taps in the wash-house, and all have a splendid shower, It's grand, I can tell you. There are crowds of old Kingswoodians here, and I meet some of them nearly every day."

July 3rd, 1916.

"Our latest abomination of desolation and frightfulness is bayonet work (final assaults and races, etc.) with gas helmets on. Phew ! they are giving us a time. Fancy having your head covered with a khaki cloth helmet that comes right down over your shoulders and buttons under the tunic. Then imagine, if you can, that the aforesaid helmet is saturated with carbolic and several other vile-smelling chemicals, and that you have a tin mouth-piece between your teeth, and can only breathe out through this which is fitted with an india-rubber valve. Now imagine a crowd doubling a quarter of a mile with full pack on, and you have some faint idea of what it is like. Its awfully funny to watch ; makes the men look like a lot of great bull-finches gone mad (the valve looks just like a beak). Don't wonder that they frighten the liver out of the Germans. To watch them is enough to set one wondering whether anybody had put whisky in their tea."

February 24th, 1916.

"Outside it's a white world, with snow everywhere. The trees are just loaded down with it, and all the rough corners of old Mother Earth are smoothed off and rounded as if Providence had decided to cover up all the uglier spots and make the whole world start over afresh, all square. The dirty spots are where men have been, all else is glistening and clean. The regiment had a great day of it to-day : a snowball fight against the 1st Regiment in the morning and field operations in the afternoon. We machine-gunners didn't forget to have our own bit of fun caught our officer bending and gave him the time of his life. You couldn't see him for snow when we had finished. He took it all in good part, too, like a Briton, and went at it hammer and tongs like the veriest school-boy. Needless to say, he has risen quite half-a-dozen points in our estimation since the battle."

JACK CODNER writes from Zomba, Nyasaland, Nov. 2nd, 1916.

I noticed in the June issue of the College Magazine, that while there are many O.K.'s on active service in Europe and East Africa, few seem to have passed through Nyasaland and I trust that a few lines from this part of Central Africa will be acceptable.

We left Pretoria, after about ten days training at Robert's Heights, and travelled down to Durban with a contingent of men going to Kilindini. The railway journey was a very pleasant one and at all the principal railway stations we received so hearty a welcome that it is certainly a wonder none of the fellows were left behind. We arrived in Durban on May 1st, and our train took us right down to the docks where the "Armada Castle," looking more like a warship than a passenger liner, was awaiting the arrival of troops for B.E.A. As four troop trains had arrived before us, there was quite a large number of men on the docks which presented a busy scene, as everyone was occupied with getting their kit aboard.

We were rather disappointed, however, when we heard that as the "Armada" was not calling at any port south of Kilindini, the Nyasaland contingent would have to go into camp until a boat sailing for Beira was available. So we were driven out in mule wagons to the Base Camp at Congella while the "Armada" sailed that afternoon.

Our stay in Durban lasted three weeks and we had a most enjoyable time. The people did all they could to entertain us and being in khaki we were allowed quite a number of privileges, the greatest perhaps being that of riding free on all trams.

On May 22nd, however, our holiday came to an end for at five o'clock in the morning we left camp in a drenching rain and were driven down to the docks. Here our boat the "Professor Woermann," formerly one of the steamers owned by the German East African Line, was berthed and we went straight aboard, placed our rifles in the fore hold and our kit in what used to be the first-class smoking room, an apartment elaborately laid-out in marble. At five in the afternoon we moved off and the majority of men had little time for any meditation, for no sooner had the "Professor" crossed the 'Bar,' than she began to feel the effects of a rather heavy sea and those of us, who were not good sailors, were glad to spread our blankets out on deck and "turn in." Our first night's rest was by no means a peaceful one for every now and again, as the boat gave a severe lurch, we were awakened to find ourselves gradually sliding off, and had to get up more than once to collect our blankets. Our meals were likewise frequently interrupted and every now and again we had to hunt for our "Dixies" under a neighbouring table.

On May 25th we sighted Beira and the next day anchored quite close to the shore. Here we transhipped to a small coasting steamer called the "Ipu" and after a quick trip, we arrived next day off Chinde at the mouth of the river.

Our trip on the Zambesi in river steamers was a very slow one, but it gave us a very good opportunity of seeing the river and of having a random shot, now and again, at a stray crocodile or "hippo." We had five days on the river, and on June 2nd entrained at Chindio, and after a journey lasting nearly twelve hours arrived at Limbe, a small native village forty miles from Zomba. The train journey was quite a pleasant surprise. After leaving Chindio we had a non-stop run to Port Herald a distance of 60 miles which took just  $2\frac{1}{2}$  hours. Twenty miles further on we entered the mountains, where the scenery in some parts was magnificent. From Limbe we had to march and three days later on June 5th arrived in camp at Zomba feeling very fit but rather sore.

Nyasaland is purely an agricultural country and has certainly a bright future in store when once it is in more direct communication with the outside world. Cotton, tea and tobacco are extensively grown, and practically all summer and winter crops thrive as well here as they do in the Union. The country teems with game of all descriptions and many species of antelope as well as the more ferocious wild animals, such as wild pig, are to be found within a few miles of Zomba, while beyond the lake, giraffe, zebra and elephant appear to be quite common. The town of Zomba lies at the foot of a mountain and though only a small place, yet it covers a wild area. The houses are far apart and there is an abundance of tropical vegetation everywhere. The Governor of Nyasaland, Sir George Smith, resides here and has shown a lively interest in the doings of the M.T.C.

The camp is nearly two miles from town and to a stranger it looks more like a native kraal than a military base, for tents have been replaced by reed huts which have been built by natives. The work which concerns us here is transporting supplies, first from the station at Limbe to the camp here, and then 82 miles further to Fort Johnston on the Lake. The first part of the journey is done by Packard motor lorries which are capable of carrying any load not exceeding five tons. There are at present eight or nine of these lorries running between here and Limbe and they do the journey of 80 miles in one day. From here, as the roads to Fort Johnston are too rough for the Packards the stores are taken up by the lighter cars of which there are about thirty on the road. On the lake there are three steamers which convey the stores to Mwaya and from here the supplies are sent to the base by motor cars and native carriers or "tenga-tenga" boys as they are called. It is strange to be on the lake during rough weather. The boat rolls just as though it was on the open sea, and it is hard to realise that you are only a mile or two from land.

Just at present we are having intense heat and I expect this is the forerunner of the coming wet season. So far we have had only a few cases of malarial fever, but when the rainy season sets in, I expect most of us will have an attack.

We are all hoping to be back in the Union within the next few months and the campaign seems to be so near an end now, that more than one wager has been taken on as to the exact date on which Peace will be declared.

Best wishes for a prosperous cricket season and for every success in the coming exams.

Cricket Retrospect, 1916

THE year opened last February with a somewhat pessimistic outlook ; the team seemed a very weak one and there appeared to be little talent in the second team. In spite of this a number of games have been won and there has been a marked improvement all round. The batting is still lamentably weak ; Dold and Staples show much improved form, but there is a lack of consistency in the rest. The same pair have had most success with the ball. The fielding has improved greatly, Turner being particularly safe and in a large measure responsible for the small number of byes. Running between the wickets is still very poor and players must get into the habit of calling " Yes " or " No " or " Wait " after strokes. Only this and experience will remedy a bad fault which has lost us so many runs during the year. Several first team players have shown consistent keenness in both practices and matches, but one or two have rather noticeably lacked a real sporting spirit.

Turner, as captain, has used his bowlers very judiciously and kept the team steadily up to the scratch.

On the whole, we cannot be disappointed over the season's record, for it is more satisfactory than prophecy had promised. Fletcher has regularly acted as umpire for First XI., and has been of consistent and real service to the team. The position is not an attractive one, so that a reliable umpire is not always easy to get, but proportionately appreciated.

Matches played since June, 3 ; won 2 ; lost 0 ; drawn 1.

KINGSWOOD v. RHODES

Played on Kingswood ground on November 1st. In view of the weakness of their team owing to students enlisting, Rhodes were willing to play only our " School " XI. This combined with the fact that there had been little practice possible and that the team had come to rely a little too much on the masters led to a very poor exhibition.

The wickets fell to very weak bowlers, and the running between the wickets was nervous and erratic. Runs and wickets were both thrown away. Rhodes did but little better and there was time for our second venture before 5.45. There was some improvement, but the same faults were obvious. One noticable fault was that the bowlers had little idea of how to place their field, and left the captain to do it for them. Rhodes preferred not to continue the game, which ended in a draw much in their favour.

KINGSWOOD v. VICTORIA HIGH SCHOOL

Played on Kingswood field, and resulted in a victory of 8 wickets. In the first innings bad luck attended us, for a number of easy catches dropped all over the field, the bowling also was not up to standard, but fielding sound. Mr. Brockless and Dold gave a useful start to the team, but later players failed to take advantage of the weak bowling. In the second innings, V.H.S. had 42 for two wickets, but a rot set in, and soon 9 wickets were down for only 54. The tail wagged effectively for the remainder. Kingswood first pair again made a sound start, and the total was passed without much trouble. In this match, the fielding generally was fair, but throwing in lacked accuracy. Turner saved many a bye by alert work at fine slip. Staples kept good length with the ball, and batted soundly for his score. Hesitancy between the wickets again cost us a number of runs, and is a fault which simply must be attended to if matches are to be won in future. Batting is too uncertain at present to allow such opportunities to be carelessly neglected.

KINGSWOOD v. ST. AIDAN'S

Played on St. Aidan's ground on the 8th and 15th November. Turner won the toss and elected to take the field. The Aidan's innings opened disastrously two catches being dropped off the opening over, wickets fell steadily and only Fr. Furniss really showed confidence. The Aidans XI batted in good style, but lacked experience against fast bowling. The innings closed for 60. Kingswood, except for Dold, never looked like making runs; their old fault between the wicket was again in evidence and noticeably so in contrast with their opponents. Ramsbottom, with a big off break to a leg break action deceived all the tail, and few could resist wild hitting; as a result a poor exhibition closed for 59.

In the next innings St. Aidan's fared even more disastrously and were saved from collapse only by an excellent partnership between Miller and Howe who were responsible for 39 out of their total of 63. Staples showed improved length, and the fielding was much better. Turner was especially useful. Our innings opened badly and 4 wickets had dropped for 22, but a stand was then made, and largely owing to the sound batting of Staples, the score was carried to 95 before the next wicket fell. This stand ensured an easy victory for Kingswood.

We were very disappointed at Bathurst's inability to play us in November, but fully appreciate the circumstances which at the last prevented them from coming up. All-day country matches are most enjoyable, and we look forward to a fixture with them early next year.

CHARACTERS

- N. TURNER : Captain. Is keen and energetic ; has captained the eleven well. Must learn to play back as well as forward, too liable to tip a ball to slips. Very safe and alert in the field and thus saved many byes.
- E. DOLD : Secretary. The most reliable bat in the eleven and has a good eye but an awkward style, sound on leg-side, but reckless on the toff ; forces the ball well ; should develop as a slow bowler but must learn to keep a good length and place his field. Very poor between the wickets. Has been a useful point, though slow.
- W. STAPLES : A promising player with both bat and ball ; is gaining in confidence and experience, has an easy action in bowling but places his field very badly ; his balls keep well on the wicket and work havoc with the tail end of an eleven ; neat, safe field. Runs well between the wickets.
- A. LEWIS : Wicket-keeper. Has not been safe and lets many balls slip past on the leg side ; lacks proper keenness. Reckless slogger, capable of making runs if he would avoid hitting wildly at good length balls, and keep a straight bat.
- A. STIRK :—A promising player. Extremely nervous. Bats with very good style, but has never stayed long enough at the wicket to get confidence. Breaks both ways, but has no length. Should do well next year. Neat field, but not sufficiently alert.

L. T. GRAY : Has improved all round ; has some very weak strokes and is inclined to pull and lift good-length balls. Safe, hard-working field.

H. BISSEKER : Good field, but very erratic bat. Tries to put every ball through the slips and cannot play a break bowler ; badly given to cross-bat ; keen player.

M. BROWN : Is fairly useful in the field ; very poor bat and no length to his bowling.

Messrs. Crouch, Brockless and Matterson have assisted the eleven throughout the season.

Liebman, Purdon and Hulett have played once for the first team since June.

SECOND TEAM

Practising on the City Lords has been consistent, but only two matches have been played this quarter. The material available is on the whole disappointing, and only comparatively few shew any understanding of either the facts or the spirit of cricket. Alger has captained the team well, and shown keen interest. The batting is weak, though Alger, Liebman, Cadle and Hulett will very possibly come on next year if attention is paid to correct strokes. Gray and Moir may shape well as bowlers, but sadly lack length at present. Dicks, Manley and Codner may make runs, but are too liable to cross-bat or to "scooping" at a ball. The fielding is on the whole moderate.

[We regret that owing to lack of space further criticism and comment on Junior Cricket (including the "Currie Cup") has to be held over until our next issue.]

Cadet Corps

Promotions :—To be 2nd Lieut., Sergt. E. G. Dold. ; to be C.S.M., Sergt. A. C. Alger ; to be Sergt., Pvt. M. C. Fletcher ; to be Corporals, Pvt. H. Ayliff, Pvt. G. Barnes, Pvt. W. Morrisby.

The following have gained Bugler's efficiency badges :—
W. L. Allan, 92 per cent. ; R. Dyke, 85 per cent. ;
Border, 80 per cent.

B. C. Rayner, 85 per cent., 2nd Class Bugler.

The Signalling Examinations have not yet taken place, but good progress has been made in both Semaphore and Morse. We are still in want of heliographs.

The miniature range has been well patronised and some good scores have been handed in. The exigencies of cricket and examinations have prevented anything being done in competitions.

Synchronising with the re-issue of arms, instruction has been given in carbine exercises, loading and aiming. "D" Troop has been put through the Knotting course.

Under the able and enthusiastic instruction of Mr. Brockless, great progress has been made with a bugle-band, and for the first time for many years the Corps marched to Church led by the band. We hope that some of our musicians will next year take up other instruments than the bugle, and that our brass band which had a good reputation some years back, will be once more in existence. The instruments are all in good order and only await players.

After three years' instruction under our own officers only, we are to be allowed the services of a 'part-time instructor' who should begin his duties next quarter.

The annual church parade of the Cadet Corps of the City took place on Sunday forenoon, 12th November, 1916, and was preceded by a review and inspection conducted by Major W. C. van Ryneveld in front of the Drostdy. The three colleges, St. Andrew's, St. Aidan's and Kingswood, also the Victoria High School were all strongly represented, the parade being under the command of Capt. Williamson, the senior officer. In his round of inspection Major Ryneveld was accompanied by Major Gane and Head Constable Howell.

The various corps were under the command of the following officers : St. Andrew's, Capt. Lucas ; St. Aidan's, Capt. Hobart ; Kingswood, Capt. R. H. Matterson ; and Victoria High School, Capt. McAllister.

Addressing the parade after its inspection, Major Ryneveld said it was the duty of every able-bodied man to defend his country when his country was in danger, and in order to efficiently fulfil that duty the man must be trained in time of peace. In a good regiment the soldier was striving all the time for perfection, but it was only when he came to the supreme test of battle that the fruits of his training appeared. The good soldier had learned the hardest lesson of all ; that was the lesson of subordination to a higher authority and personality. He had learned to sacrifice everything which belonged to him individually to a cause which was far greater than anything he could ever aspire to.

When in England, Sir Thomas Smartt visited a Hospital where were wounded soldiers from an old Irish regiment, and in the course of an interview which appeared in the London Times, Sir Thomas Smartt said that as an Irishman he felt proud to hear of the magnificent gallantry of the Irish regiments, but, as one whose life had been spent in South Africa, he could not help being thrilled at hearing on every side of the courage, heroism and devotion of the South African troops. In one of his talks to the wounded soldiers, he asked what message they wished him to take back to their comrades in South Africa, and the unanimous reply was, "Tell our people across the seas to come and help us and have the honour and privilege of taking part in the final push of this glorious struggle."

Proceeding, Major van Ryneveld said they had every reason to feel proud of the response made by the men who had received their early training in this country, especially in this centre. Well and nobly had they responded to the call of duty.

In conclusion, the Inspecting Officer expressed himself very much pleased with the inspection.

The cadets thereafter, under their respective commanding officers, marched off to the various churches, the march down High Street being led by the bugle band of Kingswood.

Library Notes

NOT many new books have been added to the library since the beginning of this term, and it is hoped that a more generous response will be made next year to the demand for more copies.

As our number of books has been steadily increasing during this year, we find that the shelves are hardly large enough to hold them all, and it will soon be necessary to have a few more shelves put up, especially as some 50 to 60 new books are on order.

During the past quarter the periodicals have been badly handled, and this has necessitated the closing of the reading room for a short time. We hope that in the future they will be more carefully used.
