CONFERMENT OF THE DEGREE OF

DOCTOR OF MUSIC

HONORIS CAUSA, UPON

DOLLAR XAHURI BRAND
(ABDULLAH IBRAHIM)

Dollar Xahuri Brand, who now prefers to be called Abdullah Ibrahim after embracing the Islamic religion, was born in Cape Town in 1934 and took up the piano at the age of seven. In high school he had professional engagements with several leading bands, before forming the Jazz Epistles, which became the most popular jazz group in the country after releasing an album of original compositions. After appearing in the international Newport Jazz Festival, Dollar Brand settled for a time in New York and appeared at such places as the Lincoln Centre, Carnegie Hall, the Museum of Modern Art and The Village Vanguard, as well as playing at major universities.

The late Duke Ellington was so impressed that he arranged for him to record in the United States of America, and gave up his own position to Dollar Brand as pianist with the Ellington Orchestra for an East Coast Tour. A Rockefeller grant enabled him to study classical music under Professor Hall Everton. Later the Danish Radio commissioned him to compose for the Danish Radio Orchestra.

In 1968 Abdullah Ibrahim returned to South Africa, and divided the next years between Africa, Europe and the United States. Despite the maelstrom of New York free-form jazz from which he had just emerged, the prime influence on his Seventies music was his return to African roots.

A second vital influence stems from his conversion to Islam in 1968. The calming presence of Muslim devotional music and chants is to the forefront in his compositions of this period, and his music's most ready spiritual facet - its sense of serenity - is very apparent.

Dollar Brand left South Africa for the last time in 1976. At present he is based in New York but spends most of his time touring and appearing in major festivals.

The University of Natal honours Dollar Brand as one of the most creative musicians (of art-music) ever to have emerged from South Africa and one of the few to have achieved international acclaim.
